LIQUOR CARGO SCATTERED AS TRUCK CRASHES

Driver Critically Hurt, Whisky and Rum Lands in Ditch in Accident Near Ashland.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS

Believe Trucker Fell Asleep; Tears Down 120-Foot Guard Rail, Then Hits Bridge.

ASHLAND—Harvey Akers, 26, a truck driver, was in Samaritan hospital today in a critical condition, his truck demolished and a cargo of whisky, rum and other liquors was scattered for 90 feet along a ditch a mile and a half northeast of here on route 42 as a result of his truck crashing into a bridge.

The accident occurred at 5:30 a. m. today, according to the sheriff's office. Deputies said Akers, unconscious and "half frozen" was picked up out of the shallow creek under the bridge 20 minutes after the crash.

Deputy sheriffs reported that Akers, who was driving the truck for W. A. Givens of Akron, either fell asleep at the wheel or attempted to pass another car and then lost control of the big truck at the small incline when the accident occurred.

On Left Side Of Road.

They said the truck was on the left side of the road and first had torn down 120 feet of guard rail, breaking off eight guard posts, before it struck the left abuttment of the bridge.

The impact threw the heavily loaded truck forward with such force that it sheared the cab body off the chassis and pushed the engine back where the cab had been.

The cargo of liquor cases was scattered along the ditch, the greater portion of it unbroken, while the truck body rolled into the shallow creek. Akers, thrown out of the cab, landed free of the truck body in the stream.

At Samaritan hospital attendants said Akers' condition was critical and that he had suffered a number of fractures, deep lacerations and internal injuries.

Deputies from the sheriff's office stood guard over the cargo this morning. They could give no estimate of its value but said they had been informed it was insured.

Meet Moon, Due in Mansfield on Oct. 29

MULLINS IS THE NAME, MOONSHINE MULLINS. AND ME AND YOU ARE GONNA BE GREAT PALS.
PRIVATE
OH, FOR PITY SAKES!
GEE! I LIKE THIS PLACE SWELL, MOON- LET'S STAY HERE.
Willard

We told you yesterday we were going to name names today, about the colored comics that will be in the new Sunday News-Journal, which appears for the first time on Oct. 29.

And here's the first name—Moon Mullins!

His Mr. Mullins—and on and after Oct. 29 ours and yours as well—commits all the social errors in the book of etiquet and many others the book would refuse to notice.

Moon is always the life of the party—even if he has to crash the party, which he usually does.

Supporting Moon in his adventures among the socially elite is an explosive, all-star, low comedy cast. There's Kayo, the tough kid brother; Emmy Schmaltz, romanticist; Little Egypt, the burlesque queen, and Lord Plushbottom, on permanent leave of absence from the peerage.

Watch for the new Sunday News-Journal on Oct. 29—with the LATEST in news and the BEST in comics.

PARIS ADMITS GERMANS TAKE FRENCH TOWN

60,000 Germans Engaged in Offensive Which Carried Them to French Village.

STAGE TWO ATTACKS

France Says Heavy Artillery Fire Stopped Advance With Heavy Casualties.

(By Associated Press)

PARIS — A smashing German offensive along a 20-mile sector east of the Saar river has broken down, the French reported today, in the face of devastating Maginot line fire.

At least six German divisions were known to have taken part in the offensive yesterday in two attacks, one of which carried 100 yards into French territory, military dispatches said.

Allied army authorities estimated the strength of each division to be at least 10,000 men.

"Our fire stopped the enemy," the French general staff announced after explaining advanced French outposts had been drawn back to prepared defensive positions in the face of the advancing Germans.

Military advices said the German army threw a full division of more than 10,000 men into its first assault yesterday morning on a four-mile sector in the Moselle river valley. This thrust pushed forward a mile and a half, then across the border 100 yards away into the French village of Apach, near the Luxembourg border.

Blocked by a curtain of French artillery and machine-gun fire, the Germans halted north of Apach.

The second attack, French dispatches said, put five German divisions into action yesterday afternoon on a 20-mile sector east of the Saar river.

There the German advance was said to have been stopped on "the line foreseen," still within German territory and well in advance of the main Maginot line.

This was described as the largest and most bitterly fought action of the war on the western front thus far.

Planes Damage Ship In Second Naval Base Raid

Germans Stage New Aerial Offensive After Attack Which Killed 15; Raid Sirens Sounded Throughout East Coast Section During Day.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Nazi air raiders pentrated Scotland's defenses for the second time in 24 hours today, bombing the famous British naval base at Scapa Flow in the Orkney Islands and damaging the famous battleship Iron Duke, a veteran of Jutland.

The new air raid on British coastal defenses occurred at 10:30 a. m. Sirens sounded all along England's east coast and in the Firth of Forth area where German raiders killed 15 officers and men in an attack yesterday.

Announcement of the new Nazi air invasion was made in parliament coincident with disclosure that the battleship Royal Oak, sunk last Sunday with a loss of 800 lives, had been sent to the bottom by a German U-boat at her sheltered anchorage in Scapa Flow.

At least six torpedoes found their mark, authorities disclosed.

Announcing the new raid in a statement duplicated in the house of lords by Lord Chatfield, minister for co-ordination of defense, First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill said:

"An air raid occurred at Scapa Flow at 10:30 a. m. today, carried out by four enemy machines.

"Two bombs fell very near the Iron Duke. The ship sustained certain damage. There were no casualties."

The Iron Duke, a 21,000-ton vessel is now used as a training ship.

"Coincident with the new air raids, German U-boat warfare has been intensified, Churchill said, but he declared that 20 submarines had been destroyed by British fighters, "as well as two of the largest and latest ocean-going undersea vessels of the German navy."

"It should not be supposed," he said, "that all losses have been on one side.

"Four U-boats were certainly destroyed on Friday.

"Of about 60 U-boats ready for action at the outbreak of war, about one-third have already been sunk or seriously damaged."

Naval casualties in the Firth of Forth raid yesterday, it was revealed, totaled three officers and 13 men killed or dead of wounds. Two officers were slightly wounded and 11 men seriously and 31 slightly hurt.

A lone plane scouting off the coast of England set the air raid sirens wailing all along the eastern shore.

(Editor's Note: A reconnaissance flight by German scouting planes preceded by several hours the actual Rosyth raid yesterday.)

Residents of Rosyth, where 15 British officers and men were killed in yesterday's raid, scurried underground, as did those of Inver-Keithing, Bo'Ness and North Queensferry.

The stand by order was given in the Glasgow district, and the sirens wailed at Hull, Bridlington, Grimsby, Ramsgate and Southend on the east coast.

READY TO SIGN

Governor Takes Final Action on Billings Release Order.

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Gov. Culbert L. Olson returns to Sacramento today to put the official seal on a release order expected to make Warren K. Billings a free man early this afternoon, after 23 years of incarceration.

Billings, with Tom Mooney, was convicted of murder for the San Francisco Preparedness day bombing in 1916. Ten were killed and 40 injured that day on Market street.

The governor commuted Billings' life sentence to time served yesterday, upon recommendation by a majority of the state supreme court, which previously had acted adversely on both Mooney's and Billings' cases.

2ND NEUTRALITY REVISION SEEN

90-Day Credits Abandoned, Capital Sees New Dealers Modify Shipping Clause.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The administration dodging one senate showdown by abandoning the 90-day credit provision of the neutrality bill, prepared today to avoid another by agreeing to modifications of the bill's restrictions on shipping.

"The shipping modifications are in the process of being worked out," Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, (D., Ky.) announced.

Chairman Key Pittman, (D., Nev.) of the foreign relations committee, who announced the abandonment of the credit provision, agreed that a compromise on shipping restrictions was imminent.

It was expected that the agreement would permit American merchant vessels to trade with countries only "nominally" at war, such as Australia and New Zealand in the Pacific, and, possibly, Trinidad and Martinique in the Atlantic.

Ever a Humorist, Gillilan Jabs At Roosevelt and Neutrality

By JANE WILLIAMS

Did you ever try to pin a "national humorist" down to serious conversation? It can't be done. At least, not with Strickland Gillilan, poet, philosopher, lecturer, newspaper columnist and humorist.

It isn't that Gillilan, who addressed the Federation of Women at the Ohio theater this morning and Rotary club this noon, doesn't think about serious things; it's just that his sense of humor, like a fishing cork on rippled water, keeps bobbing up and down, in and out, of the most serious trends of thought.

He's for the brand of neutrality that will keep us out of war, but he doesn't know which brand that is.

"Do I think we'll become involved in the war?" he repeated. "Not if Mr. Roosevelt can be re-elected without it. Of course if we have to have a war to give him a third term, we'll have it.

"As much as Mr. Roosevelt hates war, I think he would just love to be in a position to send a reprieve to a sentry who slept on the job and who is sentenced to be shot at sunrise. I think he'd love to have the power over life and death—it's the only brand of power he hasn't had up to date."

We know that if there was anything funny about the European picture, Gillilan would see it.

"The only thing funny about the whole murderous picture," he said, "is Hitler. He's clothed in dignity and power only because we've given it to him. He was always comical as hell to me—until the world began to take him seriously. That was a mistake."

He's written a two-line ode to Mr. Hitler, which is funny and right to the point. But it can't be printed here because it is a too-pithy statement of his alleged ancestry.

The humorist has spoken in

POLITICAL DRIVE TO SET RECORD

Shortest in Years, It Finally Gets Under Way Tomorrow With Dems Lifting Lid.

One of the shortest municipal campaigns in Mansfield history is scheduled to get under way Wednesday night with the Democrats making the first move.

Until now, the two parties have played a "waiting game" but the Republicans apparently decided today to out-wait the Democrats who have three meetings scheduled this week.

The Nov. 7 election is just three weeks away and both parties so far have confined their campaigning to a drive for registrations.

Atty. Stuart H. Cramer, Republican campaign manager, said the party will hold no open meetings until early next week, marking the second postponement of the party's "lid-lifter." The G. O. P. executive committee will meet Wednesday, however, to formulate final plans for the campaign.

Democrats, headed by Mayor Claude M. Hunter, seeking re-election, are expected to out-

ALL OVER PENNY

WPA Worker Lacks Tax, Fight Starts, He Lands in Court.

An altercation at Ontario yesterday afternoon over the payment of a penny sales tax on a sandwich landed Perry Paessler, 39, of 500 Bowman street, in municipal court today on a charge of assault and battery.

Paessler, who appeared in court with a black eye, a deep cut in his head, and a lame knee, was granted a continuance until Friday and was released under $200 bond.

He was cited on an affidavit signed by Bert Holland, proprietor of the Ontario Inn, with whom Paessler allegedly engaged in a fist battle.

Paessler, a WPA worker, told Sheriff E. P. Long the trouble started when he informed Holland he didn't have a penny for the sales tax on a sandwich.

LONDON: Britain Discloses Royal Oak Sunk While In Harbor

(By International News Service)

LONDON—The British battleship Royal Oak, sent to the bottom by a German submarine with a loss of approximately 800 lives, was sunk while at her anchorage in Scapa Flow, it was announced today.

The announcement revealing that a German U-boat had penetrated deep into Britain's defenses, reaching the fleet's main concentration base in the Orkney Islands, was made in the house of lords by Lord Chatfield, minister for co-ordination of defense.

The sinking occurred at 1:30 a. m. on Oct. 14.

Coincident with this announcement, Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, told the house of commons:

"During the six weeks since the war started, it is estimated that 13 U-boats have been sunk and five seriously damaged and possibly sunk. Several others were damaged.

"These figures are probably an understatement."

"It is still a matter of conjecture how the U-boat penetrated the harbor defenses," he said.

"Entry of the U-boat must be

MOSCOW: Turkish Envoy Goes Home, Pact With Reds Unsigned

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Turkey's foreign minister, Sukru Saracoglu, is leaving tonight for Ankara without having signed a Turkish-Russian pact which he came here to negotiate, it was announced.

An authoritative source explained his departure by saying that it did not terminate the negotiations but marked the conclusion of one phase of them and that it was hoped they would lead eventually to a pact of mutual assistance between Russia and Turkey.

Saracoglu had been here three weeks but had had only four conversations with Josef V. Stalin and V. M. Molotov, Soviet premier and foreign minister, so far as was known. He conferred for two hours with Molotov yesterday.

The Moscow end of negotiations will be conducted by Mukhlis Erkmen, Turkish minister of agriculture, who is due tomorrow with four aides.

Despite insistence that there had been no breakdown in negotiations, it was obvious that Russia had met its first obstacles in its swift extension of influence over the Baltic and the Black sea Balkins areas.

Saracoglu had come here

Mansfield Business Curve Hits New Peak for Year

PRODUCTION, PAYROLLS ON UPWARD TREND

C. of C. Monthly Survey Gives Building Valuations Gain of 147 Per Cent.

Accelerated business and quickened industrial pace were reflected today in the Chamber of Commerce monthly business review which showed substantial gains in various Mansfield business barometers

Production and payrolls show decided increases in the past 30 days over 1938.

A combination of factors, some seasonal, some the result of the European war, others reflecting forward buying in fear of further price jumps, account for the gains, it was said.

With a lone exception, a steady upward trend was shown during the first eight months of the year with the curve shooting sharply skyward during the past month.

Increases range from nearly four per cent in bus fares to an unprecedented rise of 147 per cent in building valuations over the same period a year ago.

Relief Load Drops.

Richland county's relief load dropped to the lowest figure in two years and the Ohio State Employment service reported a 27 per cent increase in placement with private industry during the past 30 days and more than a 100 per cent increase over September of last year.

The Bureau of Unemployment Compensation said a new low for the number of initial claims was received during September indicating the rising trend of business and improved conditions of employment.

Encouraging note in the chamber's review were employment figures showing a 6 per cent increase during the past month to boost the yearly gain to nearly 12 per cent.

The chamber reported 11,569 persons on Mansfield payrolls on Oct. 1, as compared with 9,370 at the same time a year ago, an increase of 2,199; 959 persons were added to mercantile and industrial payrolls during September.

Bank clearings during the past month jumped $1,500,000 above the August figures while a slight drop in bank deposits was noted during the same period indicating money was returning to circulation.

Carloadings, up 17 per cent over last year, gave indications of heavy buying of raw materials by Mansfield industry. Nearly twice as many inbound cars were recorded as outbound.

Sales tax receipts in the county were up $61,000 over last year and postal receipts showed a gain of nearly $30,000. Building valuations soared near the $2,000,000 mark for the nine month period as against $800,000 for the corresponding period in 1938.

Holds 95 Per Cent Will Follow If 5 Per Cent Will Lead

C. L. Van Derau, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and a Westinghouse executive, told members of the Social Workers club last night at First Methodist church that 95 per cent of people in any community will follow a 5 per cent leadership.

Van Derau talked on "Our Community—Right or Wrong." He said the majority of people are more ready to believe an untruthful report if it fits it with their own ideas than they are to accept the truth if they disagree with it.

He also said that it was easier for a truck driver to give to his community's needs than for the citizen of wealth.

"The more money you have, the harder it is to give," he said, and pointed out that the entire welfare program of Mansfield is kept going largely through the contributions of the men and women in factories.

LeMoine Derr, Senior high school music instructor, gave several vocal numbers, with Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine at the piano. Major David Brown of the Salvation Army led the community singing with Mrs. Edith Nixon as accompanist.

The next meeting of the club will be held Nov. 6.

STRICKEN IN NEW LONDON

NEW LONDON—Miss Rebecca Northern died yesterday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Penn Bryan, after a long illness. Her sister was her only survivor. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Sackett funeral home, with Rev. W. H. Mitchell, pastor of First Methodist church, officiating. Burial will be in the Grove Street cemetery.

A poet may be struck by the muse 'most any time, especially when he is out somewhere away from paper and pen, according to the display of original manuscripts of Richard Sutherland which are on exhibition at the Public library. The poems, all of which are contained in his recently published volume of poetry, "Thoughts Astray," were scribbled out on bits of paper and backs of envelopes. Lines were scratched out here and there and others substituted, before the original poem was neatly copied.

Johnny Hallabrin, Mansfield's only representative on the Ohio State football squad, has acquired a new nickname. It's "Joltin' Johnny" and it was tagged on him by Columbus sports writers because of crashing play from a fullback post. He has been one of the squad of 33 selected to make the trip to Minneapolis for the Minnesota game Saturday.

SHELBY COUNCIL CALLS ON STATE, B. & O. TO ACT

Resolution Charges Grade on Route 39 Is Hazard; Rites for Victims Completed.

A resolution calling on the state highway department and the Baltimore & Ohio railroad to install flasher warning lights at the unprotected grade crossing on route 39, five miles northwest of Mansfield, where two Shelby youths were killed early yesterday, was adopted by the Shelby council last night.

Councilman John Chew who presented the resolution, declared the crossing was a hazard to Shelby residents en route to and from Mansfield. Adoption of the resolution was unanimous.

Meanwhile families of the two youths who lost their lives in the accident, Howard Artz, 19, and William Roth, also 19, completed funeral arrangements.

Services for the Artz youth, who was killed instantly when the auto in which he was riding with Roth and Jack Hemmerly, driver of the car, will be held at the Dick and Dye funeral home in Shelby at 2 p. m. Wednesday with Rev. D. B. Young, pastor of the First Lutheran church and Rev. M. P. Paetznick, assistant pastor, officiating. Burial will be in the Oakland cemetery He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Artz, 135 East Main street.

Roth Rites Thursday.

Rites for Roth, who died in Mansfield General hospital yesterday, will be held at 2:30 p. m. Thursday at the Sutter funeral home. Rev Young will officiate, with burial in the Oakland cemetery.

An employe of the Castamba theater in Shelby for two years, Roth, who suffered a fractured jaw and arm, died of internal injuries He was born in Shelby, Dec 5, 1920, and was a member of the 1938 graduating class.

The survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roth, 28 Fourth street, three sisters, Mrs. Charles Linnean of Cleveland and Betty and Jeanne at home, and a brother, Charles at home.

The condition of Hemmerly, who suffered a slight brain concussion and cuts about the face, was reported as "fair" today at Shelby Memorial hospital.

The accident occurred when the three young men were returning from a roller skating party in Mansfield at 12:15 a. m. yesterday. They failed to notice the train and their machine crashed head-on into a freight car. The impact knocked the trucks of the freight car off the tracks.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Reds Who Have Turned on Moscow Should Still Be Watched, Peg Tells Dies

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—It seems advisable at this point that Martin Dies, the chairman of the house committee on anti-American activities, be reminded that a backslid Communist or a disillusioned fellow-traveler does not, by a simple word of renunciation, become washed of his past and eligible for the confidence of those who never made the pilgrimage to Moscow. Twice lately Mr. Dies has permitted himself to be photographed in a compromising spirit with individuals whose testimony, while it did put the finger on the conspiracy, nevertheless failed to vindicate themselves. He seemed to forget that a Communist or a conscious tag-along could not have become such in the first place if he had not been qualified by character and that persons of that character never can be trusted. It is necessary to make use of them but not to indicate any other feeling toward them than that of a prosecutor toward a rogue who has turned state's evidence.

I have in mind particularly the man known as General Krivitsky, who claims to have been the chief of the Soviet's military intelligence—in short, a Moscow conspirator—in several European countries and now claims to have fallen out with Stalin. It is quite possible that he has broken with Moscow, but by his own story he has condemned himself as thoroughly as he has exposed anyone else He is, by his own admission—in fact, his boast—a dangerous man, and when his testimony has been amplified and checked this country easily could do without him.

* * *

The Maurice Malkin who testified so glibly to Soviet espionage and admitted a prison record for slugging in a strike, need not be embraced merely because his testimony was useful. If it was, its value seems doubtful, but it will not have been altogether useless if only it provides ground for a persecution that will put him away again.

Ben Gitlow, the deposed head of the American communist party, gave interesting information about Soviet crimes against the United States, the forgery of passports and the counterfeiting of American money, but the mere fact of his having quit the organization over a matter of rivalry or discipline doesn't erase the record of his service in the party at the time of its most vicious treachery to this nation. Nothing can acquit him of a nature which was capable of conniving at these evil operations, and his apostacy to the party can be attributed to no change of principles or character but only to jealousy or a quarrel over procedure.

* * *

I would cite, also, J. B. Matthews, the American who gave us the term fellow-traveler in last year's investigation and who has now bobbed up as the chief investigator for the Dies committee. Matthews may do good work hunting down his late comrades, but in his own testimony and in the book in which he later explained all this man proves that he was himself a part of the scheme to undermine the American form of government at the instance of a foreign power. He makes a pathetic attempt to exonerate himself of deliberate lying.

"I saw," he wrote of the Russian famine, "such appalling sights of poverty as would move the coldest heart—thousands of men and women fighting like wild animals to board the trains, women separated from their children and screaming long after the train had left their offspring behind."

He saw famine, but later, back in New York, at the request of a communist paper and without reading them, he issued a denial of a series of stories in which another writer described the horrible sufferings in the Ukraine. He denounced these stories as a betrayal of the working class, and says "I had no more thought of lying than of flying. All of us fellow-travelers were ready to help the communist party in its predicament. In my own mind the Soviet Union was the fatherland of the working class. How, therefore, could it have a famine which would take its toll by the million even though I had seen the evidence of it with my own eyes? Three million dead of starving but no mass meetings to save the Ukraine from Stalin's terror."

This educated man, an intellectual, sore-head, now working for the Dies committee, claims he didn't know the difference between truth and falsehood and the committee treats him with dignity and respect merely because he squealed!

Such people and all those who recently quit the party or denied the sympathies which they formerly showed, especially in labor unions, are the same today as they were before petty differences estranged them. The Soviet government has done nothing in the last two months or the last 10 years any more savage or treacherous than it had already done when these individuals, on that record, nevertheless, regarded it as the greatest experiment ever made for human betterment.

FIRST TO VOTE

Mansfielder in Columbus Sent First Absentee Ballot.

The county election board mailed its first absentee voter's ballot for the November election today.

It went to Paul V. Weir, a Mansfielder located in Columbus. He maintains his residence here but will be out of the city Nov. 7, election day.

The election board has handled only five absentee ballots at the board's headquarters in the courthouse, but election officials expected a flood of the ballots as election approaches.

Sick and absentee ballots may be voted until 6:30 p. m. Nov. 2, five days before election. Persons who are unable to go to the polls because of illness or who will be more than 50 miles from Mansfield election day are eligible to vote by the absent method if they are registered.

URGES PENSION PLAN'S DEFEAT

Farm Bureau President Says Rural Vote Can Carry or Defeat Bigelow Program.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—There are enough potential votes in rural Ohio to carry or defeat the proposed Bigelow $50-a-month pension plan at the polls Nov. 7.

That was the opinion expressed today by Perry L. Green, president of the Ohio Farm bureau, when he urged farmers to unite in a drive to defeat the proposed amendments. Green said:

"Because the amendments seriously threaten a number of outstanding longtime objectives of the farm bureau for Ohio agriculture, the forces of all state and county affiliates of the organization are being marshalled to bring about an unprecedented vote by rural Ohio citizens in opposition to the amendments.

"We have labored long and hard for revision of Ohio's tax program and the adoption of a broad-base income tax for the general revenue fund. The Bigelow pension proposal, if adopted, would preclude our ever accomplishing this, and would be ruinous to any tax program, present or future."

At the same time, Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the bureau, said the organization and Ohio farmers were not opposed to providing financial aid for the aged. He added, however, that they were against payment of a dole to everybody over a certain age, regardless of need.

COLISEUM FILLED TO DOORS AS POLICE HOLD 6TH ANNUAL BALL

(Pictures on Page 8)

If numbers mean anything, the sixth annual Mansfield police ball was a huge success last night.

For the Coliseum, the city's most spacious ballroom, was crowded to the doors and there was no room, to spare. The attendance was variously estimated at between 3,000 and 4,000.

It was generally agreed that it was the largest crowd ever to jam this hall

All but one or two members of the police department attended. The job of policing the city in their absence was taken over by state highway patrolmen and deputy sheriffs.

Police based their estimates on the attendance on the fact that officers had sold nearly 5,000 tickets for the ball.

The dancing started at 9 p. m. and an hour later the grand march led by Police Chief Meade K. Bates and Mrs. Bates was held. They were followed by other officers according to their departmental ranking and their wives in evening dress.

Dancing continued until well after midnight with music by Ace Brigode and his Virginians, nationally known radio band.

The event was sponsored by the Police Recreation club and proceeds from the ball will be used to purchase additional equipment for the department as well as a supply of ammunition for target practice.

2 Escaped O. S. R. Trusties Returned to Institution.

Two Ohio State reformatory trusties who escaped from the Sandusky honor camp, one more than four years ago, were back in cells at the institution today. One was returned from Jackson, Michigan, and the other from Huron where he was captured two days after his escape.

They are Ronald Kipperman, 27, Cuyahoga county and Karl Hackley, 28, of Madison county.

Kipperman escaped from the camp in 1935 after serving more than two years of a 10 to 25 years sentence for robbery.

Hackley, serving a one to 20 year sentence on a forgery charge, fled the camp last Friday. He was taken into custody by Huron police who recognized him on a downtown street.

Reformatory officials said that both men would be assessed additional time as penalty for their escape.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

"THE PRIVATE LIVES OF ELIZABETH AND ESSEX." Screenplay by Norman Reilly Raine and Aeneas MacKenzie from stage play by Maxwell Anderson Directed by Michael Curtiz. Cast Bette Davis, Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Donald Crisp, Alan Hale, Vincent Price, Henry Stephenson, Henry Daniell, James Stephenson, Nanette Fabares, Ralph Forbes, Robert Warwick, Leo G. Carroll.

* * *

HOLLYWOOD—Bette Davis's two Oscars might as well move over right now because a third is on its way. Whatever claim she had to another statuette through her work this year in "Dark Victory" and "The Old Maid" is strengthened immeasurably by her present portrait, probing and acid, of the so-called Virgin Queen.

The production in which our technical dynamo attacks the thespian gamut from here to Thursday is a magnificent and fascinating thing, as richly mounted and absorbingly told as any Hollywood can boast. Elizabeth's England, with its garish color and its contrasting grey, is caught with artful pictorial success by the color camera. And Elizabeth herself, a dowdy middle-aged termagant of a queen, a pathetic, emotionally wracked figure of a woman, is brought to vivid life by the studied art of Davis.

The picture abandons the rhythmic prose of Anderson's play in large part and does not suffer thereby. It is a concentrated study of warring, violent passions: the love of Elizabeth and Essex, the handsome lord many years her junior, the relentless ambitions of both which thwart their love and lead to final tragedy—but to England's greatness.

* * *

As a motion picture, "Elizabeth and Essex" suffers by confinement, virtually throughout, to the castle settings, it is a war of words, however brilliantly illustrated by the camera, direction and acting. But it is, for all that or because of it, a gripping battle, and not without its moments of high comedy as well as tragedy.

Flynn, challenged by the Davis performance, outdoes himself, succeeds well in sustaining his share of the acting burden to account for his best work to date.

* * *

"INTERMEZZO." Screenplay by George O'Neil, directed by Gregory Ratoff Cast Leslie Howard Ingrid Bergman Edna Best John Halliday, Cecil Kellaway, Enid Bennett, Ann Todd Douglas Scott Eleanor Wesselhoeft, Maria Flynn.

HOWARD is a concert violinist, happily married to Edna Best, and father of two devoted children. At home in Sweden between tours, he falls violently for his daughter's music teacher (Bergman), goes away with her for an "intermezzo" of extramarital happiness, returns finally for forgiveness when the young girl sees their folly.

This trite story on which Howard assumes the role of a male Anna Karenina more or less) scarcely deserves the distinguished direction and production it has been given. These latter assets, plus the introduction of Miss Bergman from Sweden, may compensate for the transparent yarn they adorn

Miss Bergman is refreshingly different, a warm and appealing personality, as yet untouched by the Hollywood standardization process. She is worth seeing.

He Doesn't Say Why They Quit

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About a month ago I became engaged to a girl I met at a party. We seemed to be attracted to each other from the moment we met, and now it seems as if something has come between us. The other evening she gave me back my engagement ring, and I feel pretty badly about it.

The fault was all mine, and I believe I love her more than I did, and I think she loves me. I think a great deal of her family and they also seemed to like me, which was my reason for going to their house the other evening She was there and came into the room where I was sitting, several times, for some reason or other, and spoke to me. But that was all.

She is a home girl, 25 years of age, and doesn't seem to care to go out with anyone since our engagement was broken Do you think I can hope for a reconciliation?

BENJAMIN.

You haven't told me the reason for this broken engagement, but it seems to me if she makes her presence known in this way, by walking into the room where you are visiting her family, that she will be willing to make up again. If you haven't renewed the engagement by the time you see this in print, suppose you persuade her family to leave you two alone, and then try your powers of persuasion toward a reconciliation. My best wishes to you.

Good Health Helps Brittle Nails

By MME. QUI VIVE

Fingernails, like the complexion, often reflect the condition of the health. Certain it is that a careful survey of one's daily habits and general routine may reveal nerve strain, fatigue, loss of sleep, lack of fresh air, all of which will have an unfavorable effect upon skin, muscles and blood cells. The first rule in all beautifying campaigns is to arrange a well-organized life that will make for physical and mental health.

Brittle fingernails are a torment. The nail eave loses its oval end, there is a straight across line about which nothing can be done until time obliterates it Sometimes there are snags and cracks that permit injury to the underlying flesh, inviting infections that may prove serious The flesh that surrounds finger and toe sheaths seems particularly susceptible to invading germs.

What's to be done? Regard diet. Do you enjoy a balanced one which includes meat, fish, poultry, cereals, eggs, cheese, vegetables and fruits, or are you a finicky eater? If your teeth go on edge at the sight of certain groceries, there's a chance that some food deficiency is at the root of your beauty griefs. For the sake of health as well as good appearance there must be taken each day certain quantities of protein, carbohydrates and fats.

Local treatment can do much to presto-change splitting, dry nails into smooth, satin-surfaced pink shells. Like all the cells of the body these pretty sheaths get nourishment from the blood streams. Massage at the base of the nail, where the matrix is producing the new fabric, is more than helpful Apply olive oil or a cuticle cream: be very gentle Thumb the lower portion of the nail lightly work upward toward the edge Soon there will appear a deep rose glow The nail itself is colorless and transparent, the color is in the underlying flesh When nails are pale, circulation is sluggish

With the orange wood stick force some of the cream underneath the nail eave Be careful not to press in deeply A wound there is painful, slow to heal

In the old days, when polish was in powder form, nails got a good deal of buffing which was invigorating and soothing When you have removed the old polish, friction the nails with the palm of the hand When putting on the new glint gaze only a few sweeps of the brush, which should first touch the lower portion of the nails.

Be careful to avoid spilling acids—lemon juice, vinegar or tomatoes on enamelled surfaces they stain Keep a soft, damp cloth handy when using these foods and quickly wipe off any spots

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Oct. 18.

ACCORDING to the astral incitements, this should be a lively, productive and generally favorable day, with much stirring in the social, sentimental or artistic aspects of life. While there may be some trivial changes of plans, or a few upsets, there also is presage of growth with probable promotion. There is hint of extravagance, some doubtful financial situations and also a threat of running counter to the law. With these cleverly manipulated, happy and lucrative circumstances are forecast.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of splended opportunity for advancement, promotion and favors from those of influence, with increased personal happiness and prestige. In social activities there may be extravagance, and there are hints of perilous legal entanglements and probably sudden but trivial upsets All depends upon personal thrift, vigilance and good judgment.

A child born on this day may be versatile, enterprising and ambitious, with much personal popularity and attractiveness Wishing to shine socially, it may be showy, extravagant and improvident.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"You haven't lost your touch, old dear," Lillian told him as the headwaiter departed with the promise to send us a waiter immediately. "From this vantage point we can see every table, every face in the room. It should be easy to watch lips and follow speech from here."

"It's pretty good," her husband said with pardonable complacence. "And, perhaps you have noted that it isn't too conspicuous"

"Right you are," Lillian rejoined "I wonder if any fish will swim into our net. Madge, you're the only one who has seen those two pickerel. You will have to identify them to us if they come in"

The waiter came up and Harry who knows my tastes as well as he does Lillian's, so often have Dicky and I dined with the Underwoods, ordered a truly Epicurean feast, and there was an approving glint in the eyes of the waiter at Harry's grouping of comestibles Lillian waited until the man had gone, and then looked at her big husband with a roguish gleam in her eyes

"There they are! They've just come in," I whispered, and both Harry and Lillian stiffened to attention.

"Look anywhere else but at them," Lillian whispered "Do you mean those two coming this way? Don't answer; just nod or shake your head."

I nodded vigorously as the woman and her gangster companion came slowly toward our section of the room, halting at a table which I noted had the advantage of having greater distances between it and other tables than was general.

"We'll sit here," the woman said, and I noted, as I had done before, that she was the dominant figure of the duet.

"Suits me," the man rejoined, and they sat down while Lillian and Harry began the sort of comment upon the restaurant, the food and things in general that might be expected from elderly visitors to New York.

But the two conspirators paid absolutely no attention to us. They spent an absorbed five minutes in ordering food—and drinks — and then settled back in their seats and began a colloquy in voices so low that we could not possibly hear them. But I saw, to my great relief, that they were seated in such fashion that both Harry and Lillian, accomplished lip readers, could see very plainly the movement of their mouths.

"We mustn't both watch them at once," Mr. Underwood said to his wife. "This is how we'll work it. I'll take the first watch, and you and Madge keep up a running fire of conversation apparently directed to me as well as to each other. I shan't be able to have the slightest idea of what you're saying, but every so often I'll throw in some piece of brilliant conversation such as, 'the potage is good, isn't it?' and you must play up to it. Then, after a bit, Lil, you must spell me, and I'll relate to Madge, what I've learned, if it's important enough to pass on. How will that do?"

"You know very well it's tops," his wife told him impatiently. "But I think we ought to lose no time in beginning."

"I've already begun." Her husband told her with a grin, and then we settled down to a session of carefully-camouflaged lip reading

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

AN INVALUABLE SIGNAL

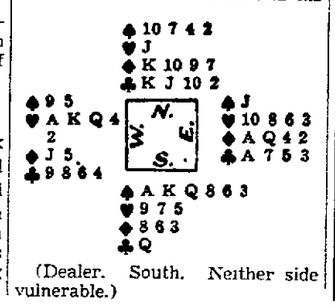
WHEN THE occasion for it is at hand, there is no more important signal than the use of a high or low card to indicate the suit to which your partner should switch his lead.

If it is absolutely sure he is going to switch, a high card calls for his choice of the higher of two side suits and a low card indicates a preference for the lower ranking one.

Because of his great offensive power South opened this deal with 1-Spade, despite his doubtful honor strength. North went to 2-Spades and South jumped it to game.

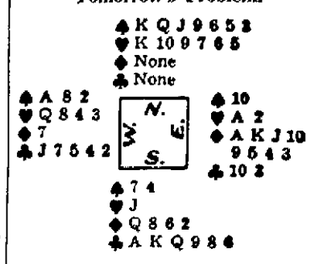
West led the heart K and his partner played the 10 on it, to make sure that West would notice its height. He did, and therefore switched to his diamond J. This was covered by the K and A. The diamond Q and club A provided the setting tricks and then a diamond ruff put the contract down another trick.

Had West not noticed his partner's signal and led a club to the second trick, declarer could have made game without difficulty, and an overtrick if East did not immediately take both minor aces.



(Dealer. South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer. North. North-South vulnerable.)

If declarer ruffs the diamond opening lead, then leads the spade K, how should West play to beat 5-Spades?

DISTRICT MEETING HELD HERE MONDAY

Mansfield Music Study Club Host to Representatives, Officers; Choral, Instrumental Program Feature of Sessions.

FOR THE FIRST TIME in the history of the Ohio Federation of Music Clubs a women's massed choral group, made up of members of individual clubs, sang at the Middle-North district conference which was held yesterday at the First Presbyterian church with the Mansfield Music Study club serving as host. The choral group, which was planned by Mrs. Roy I. Curry, Mansfield, church music chairman, was directed by Prof. Neille O'Dell Rowe of Wooster, and accompanied by Miss Louise Krause and Miss Elizabeth Burneson. Mrs. Claude Ewing served as Mansfield director.

The chorus concluded the evening recital with "Let Their Celestial Concerts All Unite" by Handel; "Jesus, Jesus, Thou Art Mine" by Bach and "Omnipotence" by Schubert.

Outstanding feature of the program was the voice and piano selections given by Miss Miriam Berg, Cleveland contralto, who was a winner in the Young Artist state and district contests, and Harold Fink, Cleveland pianist, winner in the Student Musician contests in both state and district.

Miss Berg sang "Ave Marie," a 14th century air by Zart, "Mausfallen-Spruchlein" by Hugo Wolf, and the three Richard Strauss numbers "Ruhe meine-Seele," "Traum durch die Dammerung," and "Zveignung." Mr. Fink played a Debussey and a Chopin selection.

In her second group Miss Berg sang "On the Steppe" by Gretchaninoff, "Before My Window" by Rachmaninoff. "Ah, Love But a Day" by Beach, "If No One Ever Marries Me" by Lehman, and "Bird of the Wilderness" by Horseman.

Tiffin Women Sing.

Myron E. Barnes directed the Tiffin Women's club chorus in "Salutation" by Gaines, "Light of Dawning" by Tschaikowsky-Federle, and "I Have Hung My Tents In Crimson" by Spross. Miss Helen Beidelman accompanied The opening group on the evening program was given by the Boy Violinists, youngest organization affiliated with the state federation, directed by Mrs. E. D. Gibson, junior counselor.

They played "March Pontificale" by Gounod, "To a Wild Rose" by MacDowell, and "Minuet and Trio From E. Flat Symphony" by Mozart.

Preceding the evening banquet which was served to 100 persons from Mansfield, Ashland, Bellville, Loudonville, Perrysville, Tiffin, Upper Sandusky, Willard and Wooster, a twilight musical was given by Rhea Twitchell, organist, Margaret B. Hall, pianist, and Jane Foltz, soprano.

Opening piano and organ numbers were "Sarabande" by J. S. Bach, "Sheep May Safely Graze," a chorale, and "Largo" and "Finale" from the "Organ Concerto In D Minor" by W. F. Bach.

Miss Foltz sang "Ave Maria" by Rosewig, "Elsa's Traum" from "Lohengrin" by Wagner, and "Every One Sang" by Edwards. Mrs. Twitchell and Mrs. Hall concluded by playing the "Symphonic Suite" by J. W. Clokey.

Rev. Herman L. Gilbert gave the invocation at the dinner and Mrs. K. E. Buhr, president of the Mansfield club, introduced the guests and state and district officers. Mrs. H. H. Holsher, Columbus, spoke on "Widening Horizons."

At the opening session, which followed registration at 1 p. m., Mrs. Buhr gave the greetings, and Mrs. Carl Bridestine, president of the MacDowell club at Wooster, responded. Mrs. Paul Cropper was in charge of the national federation ritual, after which Mrs. Charles Anglin and Mrs. Dean Eckert led the singing. Mrs. Gaillard B. Fuller, district president from Loudonville, conducted the meeting.

Officers Here.

Among the guests here were Mrs. R. A. Herbruck, state president, Dayton; Mrs. Theodore Myers, district secretary, Ashland; Miss Regina Barnes, treasurer from Wooster; Mrs. R. H. Priest, Loudonville, extension chairman; Miss Bernice Bixler, Ashland, publicity, and Mrs. R. H. Williams, Willard, magazine. Representatives from the clubs in the district were also in attendance.

Mrs. Hall, assisted by the artists appearing on the program, members of the local organization, and officers of the Mansfield club, arranged the program for the district conference

The next session of the Mansfield club will be Nov. 6 at the Women's Club at 7:45 p. m. Mrs. George Gernhardt is hostess, and Miss Louise Krause is in charge of the program which will be a continuation of the study of modern Russian music.

Mid-Morning Ceremony Read At St. Peter's Catholic Church

MR. and Mrs. Edward L. Gale, 310 West Fourth street, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Jeanne, to Ralph Lang of Zanesville. The ceremony was solemnized at 10:30 o'clock last Saturday morning by Rev. John Schmidt, at St. Peter's parsonage.

The bride was attired in a street length costume suit in a deep plum shade trimmed with gray caracul. Her accessories matched the suit, and she wore a corsage of Talisman roses.

Miss Rita Lang of Zanesville, sister of the bridegroom, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a black and white ensemble, and her corsage was also made from roses. The bridegrooms's brother, Andrew Lang of Zanesville, was his best man.

Immediately after the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served to a party of 16 at the Susie Janis home on Park avenue west road. A three-tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bridal pair, centered the table, which was decorated with green and white appointments and set with crystal.

Following a short wedding trip, the couple will reside at 1623 West Main street in Zanesville. Mrs. Lang was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and has been employed at the Richland Trust company for the past three years. Mr. Lang is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lang, also of Zanesville. He was graduated from high school in Zanesville and now operates a restaurant there.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding and breakfast included: Mrs. William Lang, Miss Rita and Andrew Lang, Zanesville; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gale and daughter, Shirley, of Charleston, W. Va.

Bible Class Luncheon Celebrates Birthday

The Helping Hand Bible class of the First Presbyterian church met at the church parlors recently for a reunion celebrating the 48th anniversary of the organization. Dessert-luncheon was served with Miss Edith Douglas, class teacher, and Mrs. E. F. Malone, president, pouring.

Appearing on the program were Rev. and Mrs. D. N. Roller, Mrs. Charles Anglin, Mrs. A. L. Twitchell, Mrs. W H. Gifford, Miss Douglas, Mrs. W. A. McCarty, Mrs. F. H. Fox, and Mrs. Sam Rogers. Guests here included Mrs. Susan Hartenfels, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. A. H. Roderick and Mrs. Elsie Keiser, Canton; Mrs. Margaret Ehrman, Galion; Mrs. Ella McCully, Crestline; and Mrs. Mary Veirs, East Mansfield. Messages were received from a number of other members and friends of the class which was organized in 1891.

Mrs. Harry Scoles Opens Home Last Night To Group

Mrs. Harry B. Scoles was hostess for a meeting of the Central Methodist church guild last evening at her home on Clifton boulevard. Her associates were Mrs. J. E. McCullough, Mrs. Wayne Miller, and Mrs. F. F. Huber.

The speaker of the evening was Miss Elsie Smith, whose subject was "Africa." Miss Dorothy Pearson played a piano solo, and refreshments were served at the close of the program.

There were 38 members and three guests in attendance at the session. Mrs. Frank Breckenridge has invited the group to her home, 189 Westwood avenue, for the next meeting, which will be held on Nov. 20.

Navy Department Victorian Topic

Beginning with the adoption of the American flag, Mrs. Alice Jennings traced the duties and objectives of the various divisions of the Department of the Navy, including the marine and the navy bands and the training of midshipmen, yesterday when she gave a paper at the meeting of the Victorian club.

Mrs Irl Fisher, Park avenue west, was hostess to 23 including Mrs. Frances R. Barrett, East Orange, N. J., an honorary member, and Miss Belle Anderson. The tea table was decorated with fall fruit and lighted orange tapers. Mrs. William Layton and Mrs. Victor Smith poured.

The next meeting will be Oct. 30 with Mrs. G. W. Jelliff, 136 Marion avenue. Mrs. H. T. Siegenthaler will have the paper on the Department of the Treasury.

Eastern Stars See Ritual of 1867 Given At Temple

There were 200 members and guests of Ruth chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, present for a meeting at the Masonic temple last evening. A feature of the program was an illustration of the ritualistic work of the Eastern Star as it was performed in 1867.

Mrs. Ruby Dye of Bucyrus chapter, No. 3 was mistress of ceremonies. She was assisted by her husband, Milton Dye, and the past matrons of Ruth chapter, who appeared in costumes typical of the period represented.

Following the program, Miss Pearl Wierman, the associate matron, and other chapter officers served luncheon. At the next regular meeting of Ruth chapter, Nov. 6, officers will be elected for the new year.

The Grand chapter session of Ohio will be held in Toledo, Oct. 24, 25 and 26 with headquarters at the Commodore Perry hotel. Mrs. Miriam Gross, worthy matron, is Ruth Chapter's official delegate, and she will be accompanied to the convention by other members of the local group.

Both Chapters Of Sorority Have Founder's Meet

Both the Delta Theta and the Zeta Rho chapters of Delta Theta Tau sorority held a Founder's Day program yesterday in commemoration of the founding of the philanthropic club in 1903. The Misses Maxine Jones, Mildred Angle and Lee Heim were hostesses at the Towne House for the bridge party and program of the first chapter.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Edward Channell and Miss Helen Widders, and a commemoration service was held at 10:30 p. m. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening. No date was set for the next meeting.

ROUND TABLE CLUB HAS JUBILEE TEA

Mrs. Todd Presents Musical at Golden Anniversary of Organization; Mrs. D. J. Meese, Mrs. Lester Redding Pour.

THE WOMEN'S CLUB yesterday was the scene of a golden jubilee tea held by members of the Round Table club and their guests with Mrs. J. H. Todd in charge of the program. Presidents of the other study clubs in the city were the guests, and floral gifts in shades of yellow and gold were presented by many women's organizations in Mansfield.

Mrs. Todd and Mrs. A. C. Butterfield opened and closed the program with two-piano numbers. Miss Thelma Reed played piano solos, and Mrs. George Hall accompanied Miss Charlet Cellars, who played two flute numbers. Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine was vocalist for the afternoon.

Miss Cellars, who was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Hall, played "Venetian Serenade" by Labate and "Schon Rosmarin" by Fritz Kreisler. Miss Reed's solos included: "Minuet" by Kirk Ridge and "Marlaquena" by Licuoma. Mrs. Hazeltine sang "Dawn" by Curran and "Let My Song Fill Your Heart" by Charles. She was accompanied by Miss Louise Krause. Duets, furnished by Mrs. Todd and Mrs. Butterfield were Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream," and Hoffman's "By the Brook" and "Snowflakes."

Yellow and gold flowers and yellow tapers were used on the table, and Mrs. D. J. Meese of the Round Table club, and Mrs. Lester Redding, president of the Mansfield Federation of Women, poured.

The next meeting of the organization will be with Mrs. Clayton Wagner Nov. 6. Mrs. May Moore will give a program on "The Place of Radio in Democracy," and the club will discuss "Democracy."

Grace Guild Has Routine Session, Conclave Report

Mrs. May McConoughey entertained members and guests of Grace guild of the First Methodist church yesterday at her home, 139 North Mulberry street. Miss Dorothy Crawford, Mrs. W. C. Ward and Mrs. F. M. Wadsworth were the associate hostesses.

Mrs. Paul Early was in charge of the business session, at which time she, Mrs. Louis Wissinger and Mrs. Martin Merschdorf reported on the district convention held last Wednesday in Ashland.

During the afternoon's program, Robert Early sang three selections, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Early. Mrs. Corley Williams then gave a chapter from the study book, "China and Chosen," following which the hostesses served refreshments. Mrs. E. G. Corwin will have the meeting of Nov. 20 at her home on West Second street.

A SMART SHOE THAT'S COMFORTABLE

Heels of fashionable height throw most of your weight on the balls of your feet—that's why tenderness and callouses are so likely to appear there. Dickerson Arch-Relief shoes have a small live-rubber cushion concealed in the sole at the ball of the foot—a patented feature that relieves some of the shock and pressure there. The result is a degree of comfort unusual in smart footwear.

De Sales Registers Third Straight Victory.

TOLEDO—(AP)—The De Sales college football squad today posted a record of three consecutive victories, its third decision being a 14 to 0 triumph over Assumption college, of Windsor, Ont., last night. The Toledoans tallied on the opening play from scrimmage when Halfback Hank Miesle raced 46 yards for a touchdown. A 68-yard drive ended in the closing minutes when Ken Herman plunged over from the one-yard line.

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

THERE has been some talk that the Mansfield-Massillon football rivalry will be discontinued after this year until some future date.

• • •

But, according to a reliable source, Mansfield high school athletic officials have no intentions of severing gridiron relations, despite recent trouncings.

• • •

Immediate victory prospects are not encouraging, judging from the Massillon eligibility list, which reveals that only 10 of the 33 men on the squad this year will return in 1940, but it is not likely that Mansfield will ever again be the victim of a slaughter such as it was a part of a few weeks ago.

• • •

To keep the rivalry alive, the annual game between the Tygers and Tigers may be pushed back from the second date of the season until October, it was also learned.

• • •

While Mansfield has played Massillon year after year with teams weaker in some instances than boasted by Sandusky, the Blue Streaks don't want any part of the state champions. A remark was made by one of the Sandusky coaches Saturday that "Mansfield was crazy for playing Massillon."

• • •

Reports that the Tygers defeated a team Saturday that was considerable weaker than the 1938 eleven which trounced Mansfield, 45 to 0, are denied by Sandusky followers. They regard the current Sandusky team as a capable touchdown machine, but had nothing but praise for the Tygers.

• • •

"Jock Sutherland sat in the press box while Pittsburgh bested a favored Duke team, and he must have felt like Enoch Arden did when he returned home after a long absence to find his wife in the arms of another man"—Henry McLemore.

'Will-to-Win' Spark Transforms Bucks.

THE indomitable "will-to-win" spark generated last winter by the Ohio State basketball team has transformed the Buck football squad from "darkhorse" to a definite threat in the Big Ten race. The High Street cynics are again talking "championship." But it might be better to wait another week.

Relations Again Strained In Knox.

RELATIONS are strained again between Knox county's Centerburg and Danville. During the basketball season, Danville walked off the floor when far behind Centerburg, and blamed officials for the act. Last week the underdog Centerburg team scored an 87-yard punt return in the first minute and dug in to hold the edge. In the final period, after Danville drew its seventh 15-yard penalty, Coach Cy Senft of Danville called his team off the field.

Hassinger Shoots Perfect Score

One of the most remarkable gun scores of the season was registered by Cy Hassinger of Mansfield on the Canton range Sunday while shooting with the Ashland club. Hassinger shot 50 perfect targets at 600 yards in the 30 caliber rifle match, won by Canton.

On Saturday, Hassinger led the Richland Gasco club to a 679 to 632 victory over the Bucyrus club on the Gasco outdoor range with 139.

Hangs Up First 3000 of Season

Liederkranz Club Topples 3074 Pins as It Sets Three New Marks In Club League.

THREE new season records were established by the Liederkranz club in the Club Handicap league at the Meder alleys last night.

Rolling scores of 1015, 1039 and 1020, the middle game being a new mark, the Liederkranz club hit 3,074 sticks for the first 3000 total rolled on the alleys this season.

Then Clyde Ritter turned 656 pins into the pits for a new high individual mark.

Ritter, with scores of 203, 237 and 216, and Henry Michaels, with a 246 and 645, led the Liederkranz to a clean sweep over the Optimists and a tie for third place in the standings. Art Hilborn was high for the losers with 611.

* * *

The only other 600 count was registered by Sonny Meder, who toppled 606 pins as the Page Dairys annexed two wins at the expense of the Kiwanis club.

* * *

The Kiwanians' two defeats enabled the Richman Clothes, who took a pair of tilts from the American Legion, to slide into a tie for first place.

In the other matches, the J.A.C. club won two games from Tracy & Avery. Schoolmasters did likewise against the Lumbermens Mutuals and the Mansfield Savings Bank took a pair from the Commercial Managers.

Record Crowd To See Game

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Cleveland was assured today of its largest sports crowd of the year with the announcement of a sell-out for Saturday's Notre Dame-Navy football game at the lakefront stadium.

Herbert Buckman, stadium manager, set total attendance at 78,750, declared that all tickets had been sold except for several hundred held for high school students. He said these would not be sold to adults in spite of a brisk demand.

Hotels were reported completely booked and all reservations had been taken for the week-end on Detroit-Cleveland boats.

Hallabrin Wins Praise From Ohio State Coach.

Coach Francis Schmidt was effusive in his appraisal of the Buckeyes after their 13 to 0 conquest of Northwestern. "I was very well pleased on the whole," he said, "and more than pleased that we came out of the scrap without any serious injuries.

"Individually, you'd have to name almost the whole team," Schmidt declared, "because it was a team game and every man in there did fine. If there were any boys who stood out more than the rest, it was old Sark on left end, Anderson over on the other side, Fritz Howard at guard, Vic Marino on the other guard, Scotty the two Jimmys (Langhurst and Straysbaugh), Andrako, Zad and Hallabrin in the backfield. But like I said, it was the whole team in there doing great and it isn't fair to pick out a half dozen. They all did fine."

INDIANS GET $22,005 IN WORLD SERIES CUT

CINCINNATI—(NS)—The St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Red Sox second place teams in the National and American leagues, each will receive $33,008.84 as their share of the world series money.

The third place Brooklyn Dodgers and Cleveland Indians will each get $22,005.39, while the fourth place Chicago Cubs and White Sox each will divide $11,002.95

GOODMAN WEDS

Bucky Walters Named 'Most Valuable Player.'

NEW YORK—(AP)—Corralling 303 of a possible 336 points, William Henry (Bucky) Walters, jr., the prodigious pitching star of the Cincinnati Reds, today was named the most valuable player in the National league.

His selection, more or less expected, was made by a committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America and entitled him to a trophy offered by the Sporting News.

Out-of-State Elevens Hold Ohio Spotlight

Notre Dame, Navy Vie Saturday in Cleveland Stadium; Bucks Travel West.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Thirty-four of Ohio's collegiate football squads see action next week-end in a 22-game program, but the biggest battle on the Buckeye front is scheduled between two out-of-state aggregations—Notre Dame and Navy.

The South Bend Irish and the Annapolis Midshipmen tangle Saturday at Cleveland, and close to 80,000 fans are slated to sit in. The two Titans are undefeated for the year, although the Middies have a 0-0 deadlock with Dartmouth on their record.

* * *

Ohio State's jaunt to Minneapolis for a Big Ten clash with Minnesota gets a hefty share of the spotlight, for the Bucks are definitely gunning for at least a share of the conference crown after their 13 to 0 conquest of Northwestern Saturday.

* * *

Ten games with out-of-state foes are on the week-end schedule, and the Ohio squads hope to extend the good record they've made by winning 31 and tying 1, while losing only 24 such encounters this season.

* * *

Here's the week-end schedule:

Friday: Findlay at Kent State; Ohio university at Xavier; Detroit Tech at Youngstown; Baldwin Wallace at Western Reserve, and Defiance at Albion. All are night games except the Findlay-Kent affair.

Saturday: Navy-Notre Dame at Cleveland; Ohio State at Minnesota; Heidelberg at Kenyon; Marietta at Capital; Mount Union at Wooster; Muskingum at Denison; Otterbein at Bowling Green; Ashland at Ohio Northern; Thiel at Hiram; Akron at Miami; Case at Ohio Wesleyan; Oberlin at Hamilton; Alfred Holbrook at Rio Grande; Marshall at Dayton; Grand Rapids at Bluffton (night); Toledo at Scranton, and Cincinnati at Wayne.

Sunday: John Carroll at St. Joseph's (Philadelphia.)

INDIANA COLLEGE BACK LEADS NATION'S SCORERS

NEW YORK—(AP)—Taking a jump on other ambitious ball-carriers on the nation's gridirons, Hank Lieberum, quarterback and captain of the Indiana Collegiate Spartans of the Manchester conference, already has scored nine touchdowns for 54 points in four games.

Stars of other small college teams are his closest pursuers—Red Mayberry of Wake Forest with 42 points, Al Domina of Norwich, a small New England military academy, 40, and George Morris of Baldwin-Wallace in Ohio, 39.

ORDERS BUCKS TO BRUSH UP ON AERIALS

COLUMBUS—(NS)—Coach Francis Schmidt today ordered his Ohio State football squad to brush up on its aerial attack.

At his weekly press luncheon yesterday, Schmidt revealed that last Saturday was the first time in years that a team he coached failed to complete even one forward pass. The Scarlet and Gray gridders missed every one of 10 attempts.

SEEKS BAER BOUT

NEW YORK—(NS)—Heavyweight "Red" Burman had $15,000 on the line today as an inducement for Maxie Baer to fight him in New York. If Baer refuses to accept the challenge to a bout "Red" hopes to get a crack at Tony Galento.

HARMON GAINS BIG TEN LEAD WITH 27 POINTS

CHICAGO—(AP)—Tom Harmon, Michigan's sensational junior halfback is the Big Ten's leading scorer after the first week of general firing on the conference football front. He scored all 27 of the Wolverines' points against Iowa to take a nine-point lead on Erwin Prasse, Iowa end.

Tygers Only County Club Idle This Week

MADISON, Shelby, Bellville and Butler will attempt to uphold the prestige of Richland county football this week-end. Mansfield high gridmen will be idle until a week from Saturday when Akron Kenmore invades.

Coach Al Fendrick's Madison Rams, who now boast of two victories in five games, are hosts to Norwalk St. Paul's Friday night, and the Mansfield suburban eleven may make it two straight.

* * *

Bellville, the county's only undefeated club, seeks its sixth straight triumph at Sunbury Friday afternoon. Incidentally, Sunbury is coached by Everett Whipkey, former Bellville mentor. The Bluejays are likely to romp again.

* * *

Shelby will display its wares at Mt. Vernon Friday night and this game may develop into a "dog fight," although the Whippets will probably rule as slight favorites.

Still without a victory, Butler will go to Loudonville Friday, and the Bulldogs are overdue.

Crestline, just across the county line, goes to Willard Friday night, and the Onondagas should make it six in a row. Willard bowed to Tiffin Junior Order, 44 to 0, last week, and the Juniors, in turn, lost previously to Tiffin Calvert, Crestline's victim last week.

* * *

Crestline, Bellville and Marion remain the only undefeated teams in this district, and a tie mars the President's record.

* * *

Bob Frye of Crestline continues in front in the individual scoring race with 77 points, and he is trailed by Howard Hamilton of Bellville, with 68. The team and individual scoring leaders of this district follow:

City Class A League Pinmen Meet Wednesday.

Plans for the organization of a City Class A league will be formulated at a meeting of sponsors and bowlers at the Meder alleys at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday, M. S. Meder, alley owner announced today. A team average of approximately 925 is likely, Meder said.

Bucks Prepare For Minnesota

Ohio State Shows Class in Win Over Wildcats.

COLUMBUS—(NS)—Gaining momentum with each game, Ohio State university's football team today prepped for the season's sternest test—Saturday's long awaited battle with Minnesota in Minneapolis.

The Bucks were convinced that last Saturday's 13 to 0 victory over Northwestern was well earned and figured that the style of play used in that triumph, hard drives off tackle, might conquer Bernie Bierman's mighty men of the north country.

With one exception, Coach Francis Schmidt was well satisfied with the work against the Wildcats. The glaring fault lay in the failure of Buck backs to complete even one of the 10 passes they attempted. That was a rare incident, indeed, and Schmidt planned to give the passers plenty of practice before the squad leaves for Minneapolis Thursday.

* * *

While they were impressive against Northwestern, the Scarlet and Gray lads continue to play spotty football. Correction of that weakness and they will be hard to beat in any league.

* * *

The first string backfield composed of Frank Zadworney, Jimmy Strausbaugh, Jim Langhurst and Don Scott performed particularly well against the Wildcats. Scott, Strausbaugh and Langhurst picked up considerable yardage on thrusts through the tackles and Zadworney was consistently gaining three and four yards around end and in the center.

State's defense was effective and had no trouble in stopping young Bill Decorrevont, highly publicized Wildcat sophomore halfback. Bill did not get away all afternoon but his competitor for left halfback, "Red" Hahnenstein, broke into the Ohio secondary two or three times.

OHIO STATE BASKETEERS INAUGURATE PRACTICE

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Coach Harold Olsen's Ohio State basketball squad, defending Big Ten and eastern N. C. A. A. champions, opened twice-a-week practice today.

Olsen must find replacements for three of last year's regulars, Captain Jimmy Hull, Dick Boughner and Dick Baker. Returning veterans are Captain Jimmy Lynch, John Schick, Jack Dawson, Bill Sattler and Gil Mickelson.

OUTPOINTS BARBARA

CHICAGO—Tommy Pallatin, 145¾, St. Joseph, Mich., outpointed Johnny Barbara, 152¾, South Bend, Ind. (8).

REDS' STAGE AMBITIONS GO AWRY, TOUR CANCELLED

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The stage ambitions of several Cincinnati Red players appeared today to have gone awry with the announcement of Press Agent Noah Schechter that a vaudeville act in which they were scheduled to appear had been "called off." Ernie Lombardi, Frank McCormick, Bucky Walters and one or two others had parts in the act but Schechter said "we couldn't get the right players together."

Middies' Huge Aerial Guns Primed for Notre Dame Tilt

By JOHN S. GROVER

ANNAPOLIS, Md. —(AP)— "You may fire when ready, Gridley."

Maj. Emery E. (Swede) Larson, Navy football coach, has swiped Admiral George Dewey's immortal order for his 1939 football team. The pass-minded Swede has his midshipmen firing footballs all over the lot.

Notre Dame, where the forward pass was perfected as an offensive threat, will see her pet weapon turned against her when the two top-flight elevens tangle at Cleveland, Saturday, because the big marine loves to see the footballs fly.

Larson has the passers this year, three who can toss 'em from hither to yon with accuracy and dispatch. Two rookies and Emmett (Punkin) Wood, a veteran, handle the airmail chores for the Middies.

Best passer on the squad is Bob Leonard, from down Texas way where the kids start with a football while they're sitting up in their cribs. Leonard tosses "floaters" that the ends say can be gathered in like picking apples. His stuff travels sharp and fast, but the receivers swear it comes in on a platter.

Wood, known chiefly for his power running, has blossomed as a chucker and punter in his last year. One of his boots traveled 72 yars in the air for a 92-yard gain in the William and Mary game. His passes are chiefly close-range whizzers. Everett Malcolm, the other rookie, is a southpaw passer, and the Swede has developed a series of plays that utilize his port wing.

Malcolm and Leonard are better than average runners. Leonard, particularly, sparkled in the early games. Wood is the outstanding ground threat on the team, along with Wes Gebert, a Seattle rookie.

Wood has been having trouble with his receivers. Monty Whitehead, back, and Swede Hansen, end, were out of the first two games with injuries, and are the best snaggers on the squad. Frenchy Durette, a New Hampshire boy, isn't a sure thing yet.

Navy has a huge team, far larger than the squads that usually rely on an aerial game. But the fire-at-will stuff worked fine for Dewey at Manila, and Larson's range-finders are sticking to the overhead barrage until something better comes along.

EMMETT WOOD

THEATERS

YOU can expect a priceless team when Bob Hope and Jerry Colonna are seen together in "The Road to Singapore". Jerry, you may not remember is Sassafras of radio fame, and it was the success of Jack Benny and Rochester in "Man About Town" that suggested teaming them. The picture is already topped by Bing Crosby and Dorothy Lamour . . . Joel McCrea will play the lead in "In Old Virginia" . . . Jack Benny's next picture will be "Buck Benny Rides Again" . . . Universal will make "The Invisible Man Returns" and the make up department has perfected a process of making a man invisible. Claude Rains played in the original film on the "Invisible Man."

* * *

Heifetz In Film.

Jascha Heifetz, one of the world's great violinists, makes his motion picture debut in "They Shall Have Music", which plays at the Ohio, Wednesday and through Friday. He provides the big musical attraction while Joel McCrea and Andrea Leeds carry the romantic theme. Walter Brennan has a major role as the old music teacher who has a prize pupil in an orphan whom he befriends. Gene Reynolds plays the small boy with talent. A benefit performance by the great violinist to aid the talented children of a poor neighborhood, provides the opportunity for the Heifetz music.

* * *

Jane and The Ritz'.

The war theme gives Jane Withers her current picture story. She is seen as the bravest young Ma'amselle in all France while the Ritz Brothers are in the army now — at least in movies — and their combined efforts make up the comedy, "Pack Up Your Troubles," which opens at the Madison tomorrow for two days. Jane entertains the rookies with her songs and impersonations. She impersonates two stage celebrities whom she has never seen—George M. Cohan and Eva Tanguay. Otto Kruger in "Scandal Sheet" is the second feature.

* * *

"On Borrowed Time."

Bobs Watson gives sturdy support to that old veteran Lionel Barrymore in "On Borrowed Time" which will be on the Ritz bill Wednesday and Thursday. These two are inseparable in this whimsical and poignant story of an old man and a small boy whom he loved too much to give up — even to death. Sir Cedric Hardwicke plays Mr. Brink, the Man in The Tree. On the same bill will be "Million Dollar Legs" with Betty Grable and Jackie Coogan.

* * *

Promoted to Class A.

John Wayne, tall, dark and handsome, has played in Western features for several years, without a break in the monotony, until United Artists decided he was just the actor to play the Ringo Kid in "Stagecoach", its big Western drama. The film was such a box office hit, as well as being highly praised by reviewers everywhere, that Wayne was immediately cast in another Class A picture. He has just finished "Allegheny Frontier." "Stagecoach" is being shown at the Majestic, along with "The Sisters," starring Bette Davis and Errol Flynn.

A Scene-Stealer.

There have been babies and babies marching with the Hollywood procession, but none has ever been more appealing than Elbert Copelen, jr., the 18-month-old youngster used in "Bachelor Mother," Park theater attraction. Elbert didn't get stellar billing along with Ginger Rogers and David Niven, but he should have had it. He is seen as the foundling who is wished onto Miss Rogers so thoroughly that no one will believe that he isn't her son. "Tailspin Tommy" is also shown.

ORDINANCE NO. 39-179

By Mr. Hunter:

An Ordinance determining to proceed with the improvement of Cook Road and Woodhill Road, in Cook Road from Dickson Parkway to Woodland Road and in Woodhill Road from Cook Road to Yale Drive by the construction of a sanitary sewer therein and authorizing the issuance and sale of bonds to pay for said improvement.

Be it Ordained by the Council of the City of Mansfield, State of Ohio, Three-Fourths of all the members elected thereto concurring.

Sec. 1. That it is hereby determined to proceed with the improvement of Cook Road and Woodhill Road, in Cook Road from Dickson Parkway to Woodland Road and in Woodhill Road from Cook Road to Yale Drive by the construction of a sanitary sewer therein in accordance with Resolution No. 39-132 passed August 1, 1939 and in accordance with the plans, specifications, estimates and profiles of said improvement heretofore approved and now on file in the office of the Department of Public Service of said city.

Sec. 2. That all claims for damages, resulting therefrom shall be judicially inquired into after completion of the proposed improvement.

Sec. 3. That the whole cost of said improvement, less One-Fiftieth thereof, shall be assessed in proportion to the benefits resulting from the improvement upon the lots and lands bounding and abutting upon the proposed improvement, and the 2% of the cost of said proposed improvement shall be paid by the City of Mansfield, Ohio.

That to provide a fund for the payment of the portion of the cost and expense for which special assessments are authorized to be levied for the improvemnt of Cook Road and Woodhill Road as aforesaid, the Mayor and Auditor be and they are hereby authorized to issue, advertise for sale and sell according to law Two Thousand Eight Hundred ($2800) Dollars of Street Assessment Bonds of the City of Mansfield, Ohio, in denominations of from 50 to 1000 Dollars each, payable in from One to Three years, and bearing interest at the same rate as borne by the bonds to be issued therefor, payable semi-annually.

That to provide a fund to pay that portion of the cost of said improvement which has to be paid by the City of Mansfield, Ohio, the cost thereof towit: $56.00 to be taken out of fund 4-Q-20 of the General Fund.

And the proceeds thereof shall be applied to the payment of the cost and expense of said improvement as aforesaid, and to no other purpose whatsoever.

An annual levy shall be made during the term of said bonds in an amount sufficient to pay the interest on the same and to provide a sinking fund for their redemption as they mature.

Sec. 4 That the following lots and lands, shall be assessed for said improvement as above determined. All the lots and lands bounding and abutting upon said improvement on Cook Road and Woodhill Road between points mentioned.

Sec. 5. That upon the sale of said bonds the proceeds thereof, together with the moneys received, if any, from the cash payments of assessments, shall be placed in the City Treasury; the accrued interest and premiums shall be placed to the credit of the sinking fund, and the remaining portion of the purchase price of said bonds shall be placed to the credit of Cook Road and Woodhill Road improvement fund and disbursed upon proper vouchers in payment of the cost and expense of the improvement aforesaid, and all moneys coming into said Cook and Woodhill Road improvement fund are hereby appropriated for the purpose of said disbursements.

Sec. 6. That the Director of Public Service be and he is hereby authorized and directed to advertise for bids and to make and execute a contract for said improvement with the lowest and best bidder, according to law.

Sec. 7. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

Passed October 3, 1939.

WHEN NOSE "FILLS UP" TONIGHT, DO THIS

HERE'S MIGHTY GOOD NEWS . . . If your nose "closes up" at night and makes breathing difficult, put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril.

RESULTS ARE SO GOOD because Vicks Va-tro-nol is expressly designed for the nose and upper throat, where transient congestion often hinders breathing. You can actually feel it go to work bringing relief.

TRY IT TONIGHT—enjoy the comfort Vicks Va-tro-nol brings.

It's no use for the Loch Ness to put in an appearance now. Folk would just mistake it for another of those phantom U-boats.

If Mussolini starts raising a funny-looking mustache, we'll know he's planning to join the Berlin-Moscow axis.

* * *

Hitler has ordered a 25-mile-an hour speed limit throughout Germany. That's fast enough since, with the country blockaded, the Germans aren't going anywhere, anyway.

* * *

We get Hitler's reason for wanting peace—he wants to call the game ended now that he's scored the first touchdown.

* * *

Mussolini has ordered all foreigners out of Ethiopia. Which, of course, is just the excuse they've been waiting for.

Examine this table. It shows that $4.46 a month repays everything on a $100 loan in 30 months. The faster you pay, the less the total cost. These payments are calculated at Household's new reduced rates of 2% monthly on balances up to $300 and 6% yearly on balances over $300 to $500. These rates are less than legal maximum, and are the same to everyone—one price to all. Only borrower's sign—no endorsers on any loan. No credit inquiries of friends or relatives.

WAR FAVORITES IN FOREFRONT OF PRICE CLIMB

Steels, Aircrafts and Rails Pace Rally Ignited by Latest European News.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—War shares again took the center of the stock market stage today and favored issues pushed up 1 to more than 3 points.

Dealings, quiet at the start, picked up momentum near the second hour as bidding for favorites became more persistent.

Steels, Aircrafts and Rails, in addition to an assortment of specialties, were in the forefront of the forward swing.

Prominent gainers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Sperry Glenn Martin, N. Y. Central, American Smelting, Western Union, Du Pont.

Latest news from the European conflict, brokers said, led traders to believe hostilities would be pressed now on and the demand of foreign nations for American goods accentuated. The German air raid on Scotland was seen as chilling hopes for nearby peace.

Comforting to market optimists was the weekly statement of Federal Reserve member banks disclosing a jump, for the country as a whole, of $37,000,000 in commercial, agricultural and industrial loans during the week ended Oct. 11.

In the same week the banks reported debits to individual accounts aggregated $7,227,000,000, or 21 per cent under the preceding week's volume. The amount was 5 per cent above the comparable week last year which included only five business days in most centers.

IT'S ILL WIND . . .

Nazi Air Raid Pays Dividends to Scots as Bombs Kill Fish.

EDINBURGH, SCOTLAND — (U.P.)—A lot of Scottish fishermen were inclined to take a tolerant view of the German air raid as they ate fish for breakfast this morning. As soon as the raid ended a swarm of small craft of all kinds put out into the Firth of Forth to collect the fish which had been killed by bomb explosions.

Roosevelt Calls for Homes for Millions of Refugees

TELLS PARLEY NATIONS FACE BIG PROBLEMS

President Declares Those Now Refugees and Those to Come Must Be Cared For.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt today called upon executives of the intergovernmental committee on political refugees to prepare to find new homes for the 10,000,000 to 20,000,000 men, women and children who may become refugees before the war in Europe ends.

In the speech opening a two-day conference of the committee's executive body, Mr. Roosevelt said that the problem of resettling refugees must be faced and solved "if the democratic principle based on respect and human dignity is to survive—if world order, which rests on the security of the individual is to be restored."

He spoke before representatives of six of the 32 nations co-operating in the movement to resettle the countless thousands of homeless refugees.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the refugee problem falls into two categories. The first, he said, is the present problem of caring for those who already are refugees and which is a problem of "comparatively small magnitude."

The second category and the major problem, Mr. Roosevelt said, is the job of resettling the multitudes whose roots will be torn up by the present war.

"The war will come to an end some day," Mr. Roosevelt said, and then the world will be faced by the second and major problem.

"All we can do is to estimate on the reasonable doctrine of chances" the president said, "that when this ghastly war ends there may be not one million but ten million or twenty million men, women and children belonging to many races and many religions, living in many countries and possibly on several continents, who will enter into the wide picture—the problem of the human refugee.

"I ask, therefore, that as the second great ask that lies before this committee, it start at this time a serious and probably a fairly expansive effort to survey and study definitely and scientifically this geographical and economic problem of resettling several million people in new areas of the earth's surface."

OPEN SESSIONS

Ohio Kiwanis Convene, Galion Minister Is Speaker.

An address by Rev. Phil E. Auer of Galion, past district governor, on "Radio Sense and Nonsense" opened today's session of the 22nd annual Ohio Kiwanis district convention at Cleveland.

Mansfield delegates attending the convention are Barney Ford, president-elect; M. W. Hieber, president, and Rev. D. N. Roller, vice president-elect.

Also on today's schedule were the men's fellowship luncheon, a tea and reception for women attending the convention, and the governor's banquet and ball in the evening. The ball is the highlight of the convention and is in honor of Ohio District Governor Floyd Pfaff of Marietta, and his wife.

2 HURT IN CRASH LEAVE HOSPITAL

Husband of Traffic Victim and Daughter Improve.

Wilbert Goon, 31, and his six-year-old daughter, Mary Ellen, 29½ Arch street, injured in a traffic accident Sept. 30 in East Mansfield, were released late yesterday from General hospital.

Goon received a fractured jaw, fractured left elbow and severe face and head lacerations. The child had a broken leg. Mrs. Goon was killed in the accident which involved three cars, two of which collided head-on.

Vernon Fowler, Jeromesville, driver of one of the cars, is still in General hospital. He suffered critical chest and head injuries. He is said to be improving satisfactorily.

FINED IN ROW

2 Land In Court as Result of Altercation at Coliseum.

As an aftermath to an altercation at the Coliseum last night, two men were fined in municipal court this morning on charges of disorderly conduct.

Pleading guilty to the charge, Norval B. Minnear, 114 North Walnut street, was fined $10 and costs. James Loveland, 120 West Sixth street, was convicted and fined $5 and costs.

Police said Minnear had been arrested for fighting and that when they were placing him in the cruiser, Loveland directed abusive language at them.

GILLILAN JABS AT ROOSEVELT

Ever a Humorist, He Has Fun With Neutrality Issue and Even War.

Mansfield many times. He arrived here Saturday afternoon on his way back to his home in Washington, D. C., after a whirlwind speaking tour — six speeches in four days — in Tennessee and Missouri. He is just turned 70, looks 55, but has the philosophy of Methusela.

"The psalmist who wrote that a man's life is but three score and ten, must have had a hangover," he mused. "Or perhaps he was very young and 70 seemed like a ripe old age to him. The idea of a man's life being ended at 70 is ridiculous. Why, my golly, it takes the first 70 years to learn how to live and to appreciate good things in life. Life doesn't begin at 40, it begins every morning when a man opens his eyes. Every day is a new life, a new beginning."

Gillilan is the best example of his own philosophy—each day is a new beginning. Because after 40 years he's still writing newspaper columns, and speaking from the lecture platform and doing both jobs so well that he's still a nationally known figure.

The humorist gave substantially the same talk at Rotary that he gave before the Federation of Women, touching lightly on many subjects and personalities.

"The world has gone screwball," he said, "not from lack of intelligence—we have plenty of it—but from not using what we have. Why, human stupidity is just in its infancy. It started about the time of the music-goes - round - and - round, and knock-knock-who's-there? and picked up speed when we commenced to go around with fox tails tied to the radiator cap. Now I hear they're establishing chairs in gold-fish swallowing at various colleges. You know you can be light-hearted without being light-headed.

"Yes, sir," he continued, "we're all a lot like the farmer who wouldn't subscribe to a farm magazine which promised to teach him more about farming and make him a better farmer. 'What's the use,' the farmer said. 'I don't farm half as good as I know, right now.' Yes, sir, this little region north of the ears is the greatest section of the unemployed."

Touching on world affairs, he said that he was "strictly neutral."

"I don't give a damn who shoots Hitler." He laid aside humor for an instant when he cautioned his listeners not to become stampeded by the foreign situation.

"Don't get scared, because when you're scared you have less sense than normal, and you can't get along with that little."

He referred to the Washington merry-go-round half in earnest, half in jest.

"Why, we've got congressmen down there who have never been curried below the knees. Some of 'em are awful dumb. But don't get the impression that all of them are. There are statesmen in Washington now who when they've been dead as long as some of the Daniel Webster school, they'll be rated just as smart. And just remember this — that for every crackpot in Washington, there are anywhere from 10 to 50 thousand crackpots back home who sent him there."

Gillilan was the first speaker of the fall season before the federation. He was introduced by Mrs. Lester Redding, federation president.

At Rotary club he was presented to the members by President George J. Kochenderfer.

DEATH CLAIMS CLYDE LEMLEY

Clyde A. Lemley, 57, of 157 North Main street, died in the General hospital yesterday after an illness of six weeks. Mr. Lemley was born in Butler, March 19, 1882, but spent the greater part of his life in this city.

A son, Richard, of Cleveland; his mother, Mrs. Rachel Nephew, and two brothers, Chastwen and Earl of Mansfield, survive.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 1 p. m. Thursday with Rev. H. H. Ford of the United Presbyterian church officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

INFANT BURIED

Funeral services were held yesterady afternoon for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Summers, 296 Glessner avenue, who died in General hospital shortly after birth yesterday morning. Burial was in Mansfield cemetery.

SEES WAR'S OUTCOME HINGING ON 'HUNGER DUEL' WITH NAZIS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

The German daylight air-attack on the great naval base of Rosyth, in Scotland's proud Firth of Forth (the first raid on British soil in this conflict), may mark the beginning of that new phase of the war which Herr Hitler so often has threatened darkly—devastation from the sky.

This theatrical assault, coupled with U-boat operations that resulted in the sinking of the British battleship Royal Oak, indicate a renewed effort to break the English blockade which is calculated to force Germany's capitulation.

With it may be expected further blows at British merchant shipping, with the idea of cutting off vital food supplies from England.

The hunger-duel between Germany and Britain would seem to be on in earnest.

Can Britain's blockade be sufficiently effective to starve Hitler out in the end?

Can German U-boats and bombing planes sink enough merchant shipping to starve England out, despite the British navy?

I went into the reich with the British army of occupation and never shall forget the hungry look in the eyes of the underfed children, and grown-ups as well.

And I was in England when folk were going without sufficient food in order that the troops at the front might be well fed.

The answers to our two queries are dependent on several mighty "ifs." However, an analysis develops some interesting points.

Let's look at Germany first. Nazidom is dependent on imports for about a fifth of her food in normal times. This figure presumably increases considerably during war.

If we leave Russia out of the picture for the moment, the position of Germany now as regards supplies isn't unlike what it was in the World war. The reich then had a call on about the same amount of food-stuffs and war materials from eastern Europe and the Balkans. About the same neutrals were available for trade, including Sweden, which furnishes the great bulk of Germany's iron ore.

Looking at it from this viewpoint—and still leaving Russia out — many economic experts give Britain an excellent chance of squeezing Germany—if the blockade can be maintained.

But now we have to consider Russia. Should the Soviet lay itself out to provide Germany with all supplies possible, regardless of payment, then the reich might be able to carry on indefinitely.

However, we don't know what Russia is going to do. Many observers believe she may provide supplies for a while and then cut them off, having in mind to smash Germany in the long run so to extend Soviet influence westward. We shall have to wait to see how this very important "if" comes out.

And yet the British blockade starved Germany out.

Why? Well, because the sources named couldn't fill the requirements. Russia, which was on the allied side, was knocked out by the Red revolution before the end of the war.

WEINBERGER TO HEAD ORCHESTRA

Violinist to Organize Group For Community Players.

Eugene Weinberger, Mansfield violinist, will organize and conduct the Community Players orchestra this season.

Weinberger, former conductor of the Mansfield Symphony orchestra, at present has his own "Little Symphony" which will be reorganized and start rehearsals at 7 p. m. tomorrow at Eagles hall.

The Little Symphony group will be used in the Players orchestra, Weinberger said. It is open to any Mansfield musician and applications will be taken tomorrow night. The Players orchestra will make its first appearance on Dec. 5, when "The Night of Jan. 16" is presented at Senior high school auditorium.

TWO PAROLED

Richland Countians at London Prison Farm to Be Freed.

Two Richland countians were among 70 inmates of the London Prison farm paroled today by the State Pardon and Parole commission.

Lindsay A. Schafer, sentenced in Mansfield to one to five years for removing railroad property, was paroled, effective April 1, 1940. He was sentenced last Nov. 7.

Phillip Leffler, serving a one-to-three-year term for non-support, will be released next Dec. 15 to federal authorities. If they do not want him, he will be restored to parole Jan. 15. He was sentenced April 9, 1938, in Richland county common pleas court.

DIES SEEKS TO EXTEND INQUIRY ANOTHER YEAR

Files Formal Request for Additional Funds to Carry on Quiz of Isms.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The Dies committee placed before the house leadership today a formal request for a one-year extension of its investigation of unAmerican activities and the appropriation of additional "ample funds" to carry on the work.

The resolution urging continuation of the committee's activities was adopted during an executive session late yesterday, attended by four of the committee's seven members—Chairman Martin Dies, D., Tex., and Reps. Jerry Voorhis, D., Cal.; Joe Starnes, D., Cal.; and Joseph E. Casey, D., Mass., Reps. J. Parnell Thomas, R., N. J., Noah Mason, R., Ill., and John J. Dempsey, D., N. M., were absent.

The committee was established by a special house resolution early in 1938, and given $25,000. Last February, its life was extended until Jan. 3, 1940, with an additional $100,000 appropriation.

The committee's resolution seeks immediate action on its request, although the administration has requested that no legislative action be taken in the house while the neutrality bill is pending in the senate. President Roosevelt has expressed hope no legislation other than neutrality will be considered during the special session.

"The committee," Dies said in a formal statement, "has many important witnesses who should be heard but who cannot be called in the limited time remaining under the present resolution."

"In view of the war and the critical situation that prevails throughout the world, it is believed that this committee can and will serve a necessary function which no other governmental body is now constituted to serve and that some witnesses are more willing to cooperate with the committee than with any other governmental agency," the statement continued.

"Due to many factors, persons who have heretofore been antagonistic to the committee or who have been reluctant to testify are changing their attitude with the result that the committee is assured that in the event of its continuation it will be in a position to unearth and make public information and facts that have not heretofore been disclosed."

RECEIVER NAMED

Attorney Takes Over Affairs of Printing Company.

Atty. Charles Spreng, Mansfield, was named receiver today for the Wickersham Printing company, Mansfield, declared bankrupt in the federal district court.

Atty. Spreng, recently admitted to the practice of law, was appointed by William C. Beer, referee in bankruptcy.

The Wickersham firm listed liabilities totaling $16,308 and assets amounting to $13,400, the bankruptcy schedule showed.

Liabilities included $16,073 in unsecured claims against the company. The assets included equipment valued at $13,300 and $100 in paper stock.

The first hearing for creditors will be held at 1 p. m. Oct. 27 in the court of appeals room at the courthouse.

Incorporated in 1929, the Wickersham company is headed by Philip Wolfe as president. Frank T. Wickersham, who was vice president and general manager, died several months ago.

Attend Lexington P. T. A. Meeting and Get Paid For It

LEXINGTON — Officers of the Lexington Parent Teacher association expect a big crowd at tomorrow night's meeting—they are going to pay parents of Lexington pupils to attend.

In an attempt to arouse new interest in the organization, the group decided to hold a meeting in the reverse order, hoping the audience will want to attend future meetings without being paid. More than 200 are expected to take advantage of the offer.

When parents enter the school auditorium for tomorrow night's meeting they will receive tickets instead of handing them to the doorman. After the session the tickets will be presented to a cashier who will exchange them for 10 cents.

Principal speaker at the session will be William Wickline, superintendent of the Lexington schools. Delegates to the recent state Parent-Teacher congress will make a report.

NAZI BOMBING PLANES OVER BRITAIN AGAIN

Damage Battleship in Naval Base Raid; One Warplane Shot Down, British Say.

There was no great excitement, and the all clear sounded half an hour after the first warnings were given.

Raid Workers In Action.

Air raid precautions workers went into action in the towns where the sirens blasted, and stood by in numerous other east coast municipalities, including Marblethorpe and Scarborough.

The British, made full preparations in view of a sharp warning from Berlin that intensified naval and aerial warfare against England can now be expected in view of yesterday's successes.

Nazi claims in this regard were belittled by the British, although they admitted 15 lives lost in the Edinburgh area and ordered a strict investigation of defense measures in that locality.

Start Investigation.

The ministry of Home Security stated an investigation already has been opened to determine why no air raid warning was sounded at Edinburgh when German planes roared over the Scottish city.

Chief attention was turned not on the casualties, however, but upon the fact that Edinburgh residents received no warning of the attack.

The first explanation of this was that the German planes at first were mistaken for British aircraft which had been holding practice maneuvers earlier in the day.

That this explanation failed to satisfy authorities was proved by the quick announcement of a rigid probe.

The Edinburgh Evening News reflected the ire in official circles over the air raid warning Fiasco. The newspaper published a sharp editorial which said:

"This war has produced many muddles and blunders, but none so extraordinary as that in the first raid on Britain.

"Not even an air raid warden blew his whistle."

The battle, spread over a wide area covering the Firth of Forth, Rosyth and Edinburgh, lasted an hour and a half.

The British admitted the cruiser Southampton had been struck by a bomb which caused some damage, but claimed that four of the attacking German planes had been brought down.

A survey of Edinburgh today revealed many windows were smashed by concussion from German bombs and that several houses were struck by machine gun bullets.

The streets were littered with shrapnel splinters and anti-aircraft shell caps, some weighing two pounds.

Three crew members of one German plane shot down were rescued by a Scottish fisherman. The pilot was wounded in the eye and others suffered rib and arm injuries.

"The pilot thanked me for the rescue," said the fisherman, "and gave my father a gold signet ring, remarking:

" 'Your fighters are too fast for us. I had no idea they could fly at that speed.' "

German Town Raided From Air, Report.

WINSCHOTEN, The Netherlands—(AP)—Villagers along Dollart bay today heard heavy firing from the direction of Emden, and reported they saw a British bomber flying toward that German port.

The firing was heard very distinctly at Karel, Coenraad-Polder and Drieborg. It is only about three miles across the neck of Dollart bay from The Netherlands coast to Germany.

Observers expressed belief that Emden had been raided from the air.

Artillery fire was first heard about 7 a. m. (1:40 a. m. EST) and again at 11 a. m., when it became so heavy that it rattled windows in Netherlands villages.

Observers saw columns of white smoke rising from the vicinity of Emden but it was not known whether any damage was done.

DELAWARE—(AP)—Joseph Foller, 54, of Columbus, a brakeman, was killed last night when he fell from the top of a freight car at a Big Four railroad siding four miles west of Delaware.

War Developments Listed By British.

LONDON — (INS) — These breath-taking announcements were made in the house of commons today:

1—An air raid on the main British naval base at Scapa Flow this morning, in which the battleship Iron Duke was damaged, and one German plane downed in flames.

2—Disclosure that a German U-boat "by a remarkable exploit of professional skill and daring" penetrated the Scapa Flow defenses to sink the 29,000 ton battleship Royal Oak at her anchorage last Sunday with a loss of 800 lives.

3—Death of 16 and wounding of 44 officers and men in yesterday's air raid on the Firth of Forth.

4—Sinking of 20 U-boats by the British fleet, including two of the latest and largest type of ocean-going submersibles.

'Y' DRIVE ON

Volunteer Workers Out to Sign 200 New Members.

Forty volunteer workers set out today to sign 200 new members for the Y. M. C. A. as the annual "Y" enrollment campaign got under way.

The drive officially opened with a dinner meeting of the Hermit club last night at which the membership workers were guests.

Talks in which plans for the one-week campaign were outlined were given by D. O. Meese, drive chairman, and Robert Remy, chairman of the "Y" membership committee.

The first report meeting for workers will be held at 6 p. m. Thursday at the Evergreens cafeteria. A renewal campaign, in progress for a week, also will continue until next week. A goal of 300 renewals has been set for this campaign under the leadership of Orlo L. Smith.

Byrd's Huge 'Snow Cruiser' to Stay Overnight In City

The huge 25-ton "snow cruiser" which will be used on Byrd's Antarctic expedition will be in Mansfield overnight Sunday, State Highway Director Robert S. Beightler said today as he announced a special routing through the state.

The "cruiser" will arrive in the city late Sunday from Bucyrus on route 30-N and will leave for Ashland over route 42 the next morning.

Carrying an airplane as standard equipment, the mammoth vehicle is 60 feet long, 12½ feet high and 19 feet, eight inches wide. It requires a full road width for travel, Beightler said.

The cruiser will be en route from Chicago to Boston where it will be put in shape for Byrd's trip to the South Pole. Byrd plans to use it for transporting planes and supplies over the Antarctic wastes.

The huge machine which will take three days to cross the state, will spend the second night at the Zeppelin dock at Akron.

SECOND CRASH VICTIM

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Wilmer Potts, 23, of Farrell, Pa., died in a Cleveland hospital last night of a skull fracture received in an automobile accident here Sunday night. His sister, Nellie, 25, also was killed in the accident.

This is one of the first photographs ever taken of a submarine alongside the ship which it has stopped. The vessel is the American tanker George D. Henry, halted by the German submarine seen in the distance, off the coast of Ireland. The U-boat signaled the tanker to standby, then circled the ship with its periscope trained upon it. Satisfied it was not an enemy craft the submarine submerged. The picture was taken by Seaman Carl O. Southall of the tanker's crew.

SHELBY SCHOOLS ADOPT NEW 'RANKING' GRADE CARD SYSTEM

SHELBY — When grade cards are passed out at the end of the first six-weeks period, Shelby high school students and parents will find a new type of grade mark, Principal O. H. Schaaf disclosed today.

It will not be a letter grade, but rather a ranking grade, based on a comparison of one student's work with that done by all other students who study the same subject under the same teacher, Principal Schaaf said.

Interested In Rank.

The new type of grading was chosen, Schaaf said, because for a number of years college registrars have been interested in a prospective student's ranking in his class more than in his percentage or letter grades. Most of them demand to know in which quarter of his high school graduating class he ranked.

Also so that the parents can tell how good a child's work is when he earns an "A" or some other grade. Under the old system, Schaaf pointed out, the parents had no way of knowing whether he, alone, earned that grade or whether most of the class did just as well.

The Shelby ranking system will tell college registrars not only in which quarter of the graduating class but also in which quarter of every subject group a prospective student ranked. To parents, Schaaf said, it will reveal how well the child is doing, how many others are doing just as well, how many are doing better, and how many are doing not so well as he, in each subject.

Under the new system, Schaaf revealed, students will not be ranked by exact position but rather by quarters of the class. No student is doomed to rank always in the same quarter, because his ranking will be based upon the work done each six weeks and a "plugger" has just as good an opportunity of earning a high ranking as a rapid learner, if he is willing to work, Schaaf stated.

Grade Includes Quarter.

Each student earns a certain number of points on every piece of work done in each school subject and at the end of the six-weeks period the total points are determined for each member of a class. Totals are stacked from highest to lowest and the stacks divided into four quarters. The grade of a student includes which quarter of the class he is in as the top numerator of a fraction, while the number of students in class is the bottom numerator of the fraction. The fraction is his grade.

ANDREWS QUITS

Wage, Hour Administrator to Get New U. S. Post.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The resignation of Elmer F. Andrews as wage hour administrator to be succeeded by Col. Philip Fleming of the army engineers was announced today by the White House.

Andrews' resignation was effective yesterday. In a short time he will join the staff of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Fleming, who is now serving as district engineer for the army at St. Paul, Minn., will be detailed to the secretary of labor. She will assign him to be assistant to an acting wage-hour administrator who, until Fleming is ready technically to take full charge will head the agency.

FLIERS TOP OLD FLIGHT RECORD

Stay In Air 343 Hours; Now After New Mark for Heavy Planes.

MUNCIE, Ind.—(AP)—Robert F. McDaniels, 25, of Muncie and Kelvin F. Baxter, 23, of Richmond today were in their 17th day of a flight for a new aviation endurance record.

Their cabin monoplane droned on after surpassing the 343 hours, 46 minutes which the Moody brothers of Decatur, Ill., had claimed to be the record for light planes. Friends said their goal was to outdo Fred and Al Keys, who flew 655 hours in a heavy airplane at Meridian, Miss.

line their campaign issues at a meeting at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at headquarters in the Walpark building. Either Mayor Hunter or Atty. A. S. Beach, veteran Democratic campaigner, will speak.

G. O. P. candidates have been invited to meet with the executive committee of the Richland County Colored Republican Voters' club at 7:30 p. m. today at the club's headquarters on Miller street. The condidates will be introduced to the colored campaign workers.

Meeting Thursday night, the Colored Democratic club will hear a talk by Thomas J. Davis, Cleveland councilman and president of the Ohio Colored Democratic league. Candidates will be introduced at the meeting.

A city-wide Democratic rally, sponsored by the Young Democratic club, will be held Saturday night at the Prospect school. Mayor Hunter, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley, seeking re-election, and Atty. George H. Blecker, candidate for municipal judge, are expected to be the speakers.

Making his debut in politics, William J. Locke, Republican candidate for mayor, has confined his campaign to personal contacts through house-to-house calls. He has yet to make a political speech, but he is planning to speak in every city ward in the party's abbreviated campaign, starting next week.

Ohio Bar Takes Up Integration Plan At 3-Day Meeting

Integration of the Ohio bar is one of the matters expected to attract a large delegation of Mansfield attorneys to the annual meeting of the Ohio State Bar association Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Hotel Statler in Cleveland.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston, president of the Richland County Bar association, will lead the Richland county group. The association will discuss an all-inclusive organization composed of all practicing attorneys in Ohio. A proposal has been drafted which, if adopted by the state supreme court, would accomplish the integration of the Ohio bar, Judge Huston said.

Another topic is whether the supreme court shall require the payment of an annual license fee by every judge and attorney.

Speakers will be U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, who will address the lawyers Friday afternoon on "Emergency Powers of the President," and U. S. Circuit Judge John J. Parker of Charlotte, N. C., who will speak at the annual banquet that evening on "Constitutionalism In Our Changing World."

FHA OPERATIONS HELP FAMILIES OF LOW INCOME

Extended Amortization Plan Helps to Enlarge Field for Housing Program.

Provisions of the National Housing act which permit the insurance of mortgages representing as much as 90 per cent of the appraised value of the property, in some cases, have been of great benefit to small-income families, Administrator Stewart McDonald has said.

This is true also of the provision which permits the lengthening of the term of the mortgage to periods as long as 25 years, in certain instances.

The FHA's low-cost home program has now been made more flexible by permitting the prospective builder of a home costing less than $2,500 to borrow from an institution insured under Title I if he has cash or an interest in the land equivalent to 5 per cent of the total valuation of the completed property.

That families receiving incomes of $2,500 or less are the major beneficiaries of the home-financing facilities made available by FHA is indicated in recently completed surveys, which showed that the average monthly payment on mortgages insured for families receiving incomes of $2,500 or less was 10 per cent smaller in 1938 than in the previous year.

This decrease, Mr. McDonald said, was due not only to the lengthening of the period of repayment but also to slight decreases in the average value of properties purchased by families falling in this group.

BICYCLE BEST, INSISTS OHIOAN

UHRICHSVILLE —(U.P.)—Albert T. Romig, 86, believes the bicycle is the best way to "get places in a hurry."

"It has other advantages also, besides its swiftness," Romig said. "I have no parking problems, and I can go places I can't get to in my car."

Romig's choice has its disadvantages though. He says that bystanders stare at him and that playful dogs yap at his heels.

GOOD BASEMENT WORTH ITS COST

Service Room for Housing Heating Plant Becoming Home Requirement.

Now that heating plants are neatly compact, and laundry tubs are not needed with the diminutive new style washers, there is added argument in favor of a ground floor service room for such facilities, thus dispensing with a basement.

Unquestionably, such an arrangement will save many tiring trips down and up stairs. However, the construction economy may be a bit disappointing: The house must still have a foundation and, in regions subject to severe freezing, its depth should be within a few feet of that required for a basement. A service room complicates the first floor arrangement and appreciably increases the cost of the house by enlarging its area.

A good basement is worth the difference in cost. The compactness of the modern home leaves hardly any other place for children to romp, or for a recreation room. A basement is far more desirable and handier than an attic for such purposes.

Waterproofing will protect most any basement from excessive dampness, and forced ventilation is easily added if window area is inadequate. A ceiling and walls or plaster on metal lath make a basement room as attractive as any other in the house—and remarkably fire-resistive. Solid partitions, only two inches thick, constructed of plaster on metal lath supported by slender steel channels will be found thoroughly impervious to dusty fumes from the heating plant and odorous vapors from the laundry.

FRONT PORCH NO LONGER ASSET

Good Features of Residence May Be Spoiled by One, Architects Say.

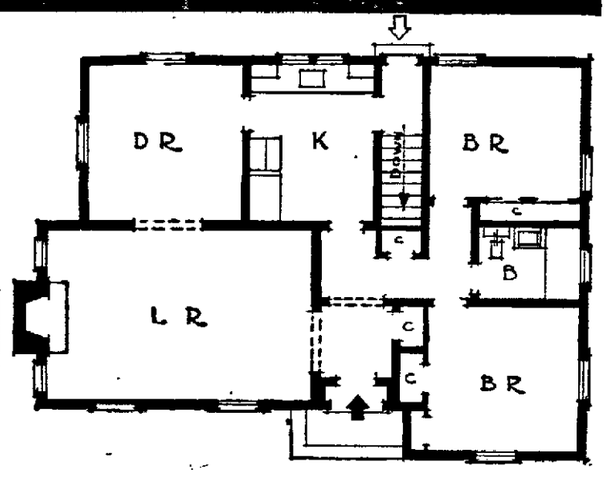
One survivor of the "horse-and-buggy" days remaining to plague present-day home owners is the front porch. At one time a wide front porch offered a vantage point from which to view the passing scene, but now the demand for privacy has led to enclosed patios and rear loggias. Architects view the front porch as a thing that tends to hide the house from view and to darken the interior.

Frequently heavy cornices and deep porch roofs cover interesting architectural features of a home, such as attractive front windows or doorways. Equally undesirable are many small corner porches set in a recess where the front and side walls meet, because they detract from the importance of the front door and destroy the symmetry of the front of the home.

Many period types of architecture require porches. Two-story porches with their delicate iron grillwork contribute much to the beauty of the old homes of New Orleans and Mobile, while porches are also architectural features of Greek Revival and some forms of Colonial architecture.

The Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing administration may be used by the home owner to satisfy the modern taste for simple facades by removing front porches which serve no purpose. Funds are obtainable from lending institutions qualified by FHA.

Universally Popular Residence



·FLOOR · PLAN·

Giving further substantiation to the belief that simplicity is synonymous with good design, this home has many excellent features uncommon in its price field. The $31.62 monthly payments on this house under the FHA plan compare favorably with local rent levels. Federal Housing administration appraisers valued the property at $5,200 and the FHA insured a mortgage on it for $4,200.

POTENTIAL HOME OWNERS GET SUGGESTIONS FOR PURCHASES

The following suggestions for those contemplating the purchase of property in a real estate subdivision are offered by the Federal Housing administration:

(1) Be sure there is evidence of a healthy and active demand for homes at the prices asked.

(2) See that the site of the subdivision is suitable; whether the land is plainly appropriate for the type of development contemplated by the developers; whether there are evidences of natural or created hazards such as fog, smoke, obnoxious odors, etc.

(3) Determine whether the subdivision is easily accessible by means of public transportation; whether there are adequate highways to schools, employment, and shopping centers.

(4) Are there adequate utilities and street improvements? Do these meet city or county specifications?

(5) Is there an adequate supply of pure water and ample facilities for the disposal of sewage? Do they meet the approval of local or state health authorities?

(6) Do the design and development comply with plans and regulations of the local zoning and city planning authorities if the subdivision falls within the jurisdiction of a city?

(7) Are there appropriate restrictive covenants?

(8) Make certain that the subdividers are financially able to carry through their sales and development program.

(9) Are the assessments and taxes in line with the development planned?

FROSH CO-EDS NOT SO GREEN

TROY, N. Y.— (U.P.) —Perhaps freshmen co-eds are not so green. A "first free night" survey of a Russell Sage college freshman residence revealed:

Ninety-seven per cent of the campus newcomers had dates out.

Two per cent, released from upper class guardianship, were dyed-in-the-wool grinds — they headed straight for the library.

One per cent had left trunk keys at home and spent the first evening tracking down local locksmiths.

GIRL, 19, TENDS LONG TRAP LINE

Co-ed Traps Foxes as Partner of Father on Lonely Island Off Alaska Coast.

KODIAK, Alaska— (U.P.) —Miss Patricia "Pat" Haracich, 19-year-old University of California at Los Angeles co-ed, uses a direct approach for the problem of getting a fox fur.

She covers a 20-mile trap line, sleeping at night in a "barabara" —a native shelter made of driftwood and thatched with sod. Miss Haracich, who enrolled as a sophomore at U. C. L. A. this year, is a capable marksman and knows her way around Alaskan wilds as well as Hollywood boulevard.

When she was only 15 she obtained 20 foxes on Adak island and this year expects to equal or better that performance. Until she returns to the United States next spring, her only contact with the States will be a small radio.

RELIEF COSTS HIT LOW MARK

WINNIPEG, Man.—(U.P.)—Relief is now costing the city of Winnipeg less than it has since 1932.

Added employment because of the bountiful harvest and heavy movement of grain to east through the railway yards here has been mainly responsible for reducing the relief rolls.

Recruiting has played but a minor part in taking people off relief.

Dr. Gillig, who has been physician for the jail since 1933, will take a postgraduate course at Harvard university.

PAY UP BILLS

Only 5 Per Cent of West Side Water Users Delinquent.

Delinquencies among west side consumers on bills payable during the past collection period are expected to amount to less than five per cent, Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the water, sewer and garbage department said today.

While a complete check of collections has not yet been made due to the fact that the collections for west side consumers closed only Saturday, Lingafelter predicts receipts will exceed those of the past few years by several thousand dollars.

Bills due were for water service rendered to residents on the west side of Main street during the first six months of this year.

Unpaid statements after today will be subject to the customary 10 per cent penalty, Lingafelter said.

SECOND STARTS TWO DAYS LATER

OAKLAND, Cal.—(U.P.)—The result of having the fire department put out a fire in the home of Mrs. W. W. McCarthy, was to have another fire 48 hours later.

Mrs. McCarthy gathered together the clothes and things that had been soaked with water and put them in a closet to dry. She also installed a heater to hasten the process. At almost the same hour, two days later, neighbors informed her she was having another fire. An examination developed that the heater in the closet had set fire to the garments that were drying.

MANSFIELD ONLY OHIO CITY ON MARINE BAND'S 42-DAY TOUR

Mansfield will be the only city in Ohio to hear the U. S. Marine band on its present tour of 42 mid-western and southern cities.

The famed band will give afternoon and evening concerts in Senior high school auditorium, Sunday, Oct. 29, under the sponsorship of the Mansfield Junior Association of Commerce.

En route home to Washington after an 8,000-mile trip, the band will come here from Plymouth, Ind., and then will go to New Castle and Pittsburgh, Pa., for concerts.

The auditorium here, seating less than 1,200, is said to be the smallest in which the band will play on its tour. The band has played before capacity audiences in every city on its itinerary, and in Houston, Tex., 17,000 persons heard the concert.

Directed by William F. Santelmann, second leader, who is "subbing" for Capt. Taylor Branson, the leader, the band of 54 members will bring $26,000 worth of instruments to the city. The equipment includes a harp worth $1,500 and two large xylophones.

The bandsmen will wear a 10,000 wardrobe, the same uniforms used in the movie production, "Sweethearts," starring Jeannette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy. At the evening concert the musicians will wear full dress uniforms.

The concert program here will include Symphonic, classical, semi-classical, folk songs, marches and popular numbers. In the afternoon the band will play the popular "Beer Barrel Polka," and the members will sing "Over the Rainbow" and "God Bless America."

ASHLAND—Merle Veach, 44, of Perrysville, was being held in the county jail here on charges of parole violation, it was stated by the sheriff's department.

"It Doesn't Start 'Till Sunday, October 29th

But Already I'm Swamped With Subscriptions For The

SUNDAY NEWS-JOURNAL"

No wonder Eugene Ropp, 91 Lind avenue, who carries Route 117 for The News-Journal is grinning.

He's shown here as he comes into The News-Journal office to report on how many of his customers have told him they want the new Sunday News-Journal, which will appear for the first time Oct. 29, delivered to their homes.

You can tell by the grin that Eugene has had a good day.

But let him tell it in his own way:

"Boy are they going for this new Sunday News-Journal! Why, everyone I call on signs up—looks to me as though they wouldn't miss it for anything. "I'm tellin' you, I was nearly swamped with orders today.

"Some folks even thought the new paper was comin' out last Sunday — and were they disappointed when I told them the first issue wouldn't be until the 29th. "But they'll wait—because they know they'll get a dandy paper, with the best colored comics and all the late news, delivered to their front doors bright and early Sunday morning.

"I'll take care of the delivery—and the editors will take care of the late news. Say—you know, I can hardly wait myself! That's gonna be some paper, that new Sunday News-Journal!"

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1939.

There was also a spot during the World war when the kaiser proposed peace on his own terms.

Few recalled that last Saturday was the 295th anniversary of the birth of William Penn—whose name was carried to posterity by a cigar.

When News York's official executioner died recently 350 applicants scrambled for his job—giving an idea of the lure of easy work and short hours.

Telling Congressmen and Senators

WHILE there can be no questioning of the "right" of every American citizen to write or wire his or her congressman and senators stating individual views on any and all subjects of national legislative interest, the advisability of such procedure is now being seriously questioned by many thoughtful persons.

This changing attitude has probably been strengthened in recent weeks by the demagogic inspiration of an avalanche of letters and telegrams that has poured into Washington in connection with discussion of neutrality.

Under the United States form of government congressmen and senators are chosen to represent their districts and states. In theory, it would be entirely proper for each of the approximately 40,000,000 voters in this country to express themselves on all issues being considered by congress, but this is so obviously impractical that, in the main, congressmen and senators are depended upon to use their best judgment in voting for or against various legislative proposals.

In such a crisis as now exists, however, it has become the custom of a considerable number of people, either as individuals or groups, to deluge congressmen and senators with letters or telegrams expressing views or advising their representatives how to vote.

Aside from letting it be known that it is the desire of an overwhelming majority of the American people to keep out of the present European war, it may be doubted if much can be accomplished by individual or group action to influence decisions to be made in congress as to the best way this can be done—for, after all, the people are largely dependent on wise and considered action by their representatives in steering the nation's course.

There are conscientious supporters of widely varied ideas of what changes, if any, should be made in present neutrality laws. Congressmen and senators may at least be assumed to be gaining fuller information on this subject than is available to the general public.

Better than a deluge of letters and telegrams telling them how to vote, would be an expression of confidence that each congressman and senator will strive, to the extent of his ability, to find a way that will give greatest assurance of keeping this country out of war.

How End Unemployment

DEPRESSION and unemployment are a little like hen and egg. It is hard to say which came first. Some people have held that depression caused unemployment and that the latter would disappear with the former. Others have held that increasing unemployment deepened the depression and that we'll never get rid of the latter until the former is ended. Relief, they doubtless agree, follows both, but others remind us that relief has always been necessary for part of the population, greater or smaller, according to the amount of unemployment and the degree of prosperity or depression.

Now, however, we are looking for the basic causes underlying all three. The importance of this search is emphasized by repeated statements of responsible persons that good times, which look nearer today than they have for years past, will scarcely make a dent in the nation's total unemployment. Isador Lubin, commissioner of labor statistics, says it will take a tremendous boom to absorb any large fragment of the unemployed in the near future, a "push many times greater than any of us expect."

If this is so, the task of social and economic adjustment is barely begun, but its urgency is clear.

Menace of Growing Debt

SINCE the World war, Great Britain's national debt increased only $2.000.000.000 up to the end of last year.

In the nine years since depression struck the United States, the national debt has increased more than $25.000.000.000.

Those two sets of figures vividly illustrate the magnitude and gravity of our debt problem. No nation in the world has been so prodigal as we in spending what has not been earned. In no nation has the national debt—which means a mortgage against all that we have, and all that may be produced by our children—soared so rapidly or so high.

Worst of all, the debt problem grows more menacing every day. The national budget is almost as far out of balance now as it was early in the depression. In spite of the highest and greatest number of taxes in our national history, the federal government continues to spend billions more than it receives in revenue each year.

It is obvious that we can expect no help from the politicians—they will spend and spend and spend as long as voters acquiesce. The solution must come from public rebellion against spending.

Kids Doff Plug Hats

COMMENTS have been printed occasionally in this country to the effect that a revolution in under way in England, and it must be so. What doubt there might be is swept away by the astounding news that the boys at Eton, the famous and aristocratic prep school, have quit wearing top hats. For generations they have worn that weird headgear everywhere, even to classes, and so far as the outer world could tell, they may have slept in them.

What has brought about this tragedy or triumph, according to the way you look at it? Credit it to Hitler. They couldn't wear the lids and the gas masks both, and life is more important even than toppers.

The kids will still wear "their usual morning coats and white ties," which may be some comfort to them and their parents. But life will never be the same at Eton. They might even come, in time, to our crude American sweaters and shorts, but it would take a couple more world wars to drag them that low.

What is called "social security" seems to actually mean financial security— and here, again, human nature shows up as quite a bugbear.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — It is evident already that some surprises are in store for members of congress and the public when they began looking behind the scenes into the pay-as-you-go scheme of social security adopted this past session.

To a lot of people it looked like the answer to the treasury's prayer to be able to increase benefits and lower taxes. Congress did exactly that. But what has happened is that the cake is being eaten now and a future generation of congressmen and taxpayers will have to decide how much cake is to be eaten in the future.

Under the old plan for social security, the monthly benefits did not start until 1942. Now they start January 1. Moreover, a lot of elderly people who couldn't expect anything out of it before are going to get a share under the new system. They will get more than they paid in.

The reason for this is that the system of financing has been changed. The plan for a big reserve has been abandoned. Only a small emergency reserve will be built up. That means present collections from the payroll tax will more than carry the present load for two or three years.

Instead of the increase in taxes due this year, the increase has been postponed three years. And the benefits have been increased. More old people will get monthly pensions than could have expected them before. Other old people who could have expected small pensions will get larger ones.

* * *

Don't Get Alarmed.

NOBODY should be deceived about the thing. The extra money that is being paid out now will have to be made up later by taxes of some kind. The present tax of one per cent on employe and one per cent on employer will carry through to about 1943. Then more old people will be entitled to dividends than are able to get them now.

The present schedule of taxes then will be increased, first to two per cent, finally to three per cent. In fact, the payroll taxes will take care of the whole load until 1954 if the rates are left as in the newly-revised law. In 1954 either the social security benefits that people had been looking forward to will be cut down—or congress will have to appropriate directly from the treasury. The latter course is expected.

It would not surprise some of the inner circle if congress never did allow the tax to go to its limit of three per cent on employer and three per cent on employe. Some quietly expect that the threat of such a load of payroll taxes will compel congress to raise the money from general income or other taxes.

Then will begin a squawk from another section. A lot of people, such as farmers, farm laborers, small store owners and professional people are not covered by the social security retirement plan. Yet in time congress will begin to have to tax them along with the rest of us to pay those who are covered. And there will arise lobbies and more lobbies to correct that. And more and more people will get old age retirement.

There is no reason for becoming panicky about it. It will cost lots of money — three to five billion dollars a year in time. But it won't reach that level until another generation of congressmen comes up to deal with it. Then it will be their headache.

* * *

A Strange Situation.

MEANTIME a queer situation arises out of the scheme to distribute the pensions where they will do the most good. Under the new law a married man retiring at 65 gets additional money for his wife as soon as she reaches 65. Still more is allowed for dependent children.

For instance, a single man retiring at 65 after paying taxes for five years will get $31.50 a month if his average earnings have been $150 a month. A married man whose wife is also 65 will get $47.25 in the same wage bracket. Yet they both pay the same social security tax. No matter how you look at it, it is a tax on bachelors.

And another thing. The congressmen have put up barriers against young women marrying old men to get pensions. Experience with war pensions taught them to do that. Now a widow can't get her husband's pension until she, too, is 65.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—You would hardly expect a drug store to house a fine collection of Civil war photography, but such is the fascination of the War Between the States for a pharmacist named Bagoe, in Madison avenue, that his windows are displays—not of pills—but of battle scenes, and where you might expect to find tooth powders you find Shiloh and Gettysburg. Bagoe is an interesting talker on that period of history. He knows all the battles, dates, and generals, both sides. And every few weeks he changes his displays. Last week's was Sherman's March to the Sea.

I never fail to think of Maxine Sullivan's strange rise to fame when I pass the Onyx, that tiny club in 52nd street, springboard for more strange triumphs in New York swing-life than any other club. There "The Music Goes Round and Around" got going, and there Maxine, the little Negro girl who came here from Pittsburgh (she's only four feet, ten inches tall), rose from obscurity to headlines singing old English ballads. Since that first night in Manhattan she has sung many tunes, but none has meant so much, or brought more fame to her, than "Loch Lomand."

* * *

AT NO time is there ever more than a 72-hour supply of perishable food in New York, and yet 50.000,000 pounds of foodstuffs pour into the city every day. New York swallows 11 million tomatoes every twenty-four hours, and 12 million eggs.

Among the "minority" groups in New York are the Poles, who number some 250,000, and the Swedes, 40,000. The Swedes are famous for their restaurants, but the Poles have only one of national fame — the Polish National Home restaurant, at 19 St. Mark's place. Typical Polish menu: pozarski kotlat, which is fresh veal and chicken, ground, with French bread crumbs, which are mixed with sour cream and fried in butter.

Smallest of the recognized minorities are perhaps the East Indians, numbering about a hundred. Their religious rituals are observed in each others' homes, there being no Hindu temples in Manhattan, or indeed in any place nearer than London. The Hindus are new to New York. The first to arrive, as dwellers, came about 30 years ago.

* * *

I HAVE never seen Father Divine . . . That lot just off Wall Street which is assessed for many millions once sold for $850 . . . New York has seven stock exchanges . . . The highest price ever paid for a seat on the New York Stock Exchange was $625.-000, and that was in 1929. A seat today may be had for around $90.-000.

Harlem is old in fame and story, but it is comparatively new as a Negro development. Until 25 years ago San Juan Hill, a tough, burly sector near Hell's Kitchen, was the "black belt." The first Negro settlement in Manhattan was near Maiden Lane, now the diamond center, and it was known as Old Fly Market . . . That makes me think of Flytown, in Columbus, which used to be a very tough sector. But Flytown, like our own Bowery, is very effete and law-abiding nowadays.

Would You Like a Democracy If You Really Had One?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WOULD you know a democracy if you saw one . . . and like it if you had it?

Sixty-eight per cent of the sophomores in the University of California believe that you wouldn't!

They've made an odd survey among themselves, those youngsters. First they gave a description of AMERICAN DEMOCRACY. AS WE THINK IT IS . . . then a picture of the same, AS ACTUALLY PRACTICED. With results which should make Uncle Sam Stop, Look—and Skin a Grape!

For none believed that Americans, as a whole, were capable of understanding or using our ideal of Democracy. A few conceded that 50 per cent might understand it . . . most thought that the great majority of American citizens were unworthy to participate in its government. Which makes for Feverish Factions, any way you look at it.

"WHY ISN'T DEMOCRACY A WHOLESALE AND INFECTIOUS SUCCESS?" asked these audacious Young Americans. Then give their own answer—

"YOU'RE WHY!"

Meaning what? Meaning this: You've learned a lot of lovely things about democracy. You say a lot of noble things about the same. But suppose someone called your bluff . . . made you interpret these patriotic phrases in terms of actual practice, what then? WOULD THE RESULTS SHOW YOU TO BE A PRACTICAL FOLLOWER OF DEMOCRACY OR JUST ANOTHER FLAG WAVER?

Start in the schools. Take the little grammar-graders with their "permanents," silk stockings and undies. Or the college co-eds with their speedsters and swank sororities. Are THEY forwarding the cause of democracy?

Yes, they are—NOT!

Consider the boys with their Flossy Frats and Fritzy Fronts—are THEY making the Corduroy Kids, who are earning their own way, feel "free and equal"?

DON'T MAKE ME LAUGH!

Yes—I'm as proud of America's record as the next one. I'm as appreciative of the beauty and nobility of its principles. And I hope with all my heart that those principles will be preserved—forever. But while I'm saying these fine things, I feel bound to take a frank Look-See at how democracy is really working out. And my sad conclusion is—IT ISN'T.

WE'RE STRONG FOR BROTHERLY LOVE . . . WE'RE ALL FOR "BLEEDING AND DYING" . . . provided the Other Fellow does it. But when it comes to upholding democracy ourselves, we want a nice, soft, safe seat, 'way back behind the Front Line Trenches!

WHY ARE ALIEN ISMS TAKING SUCH A HOLD ON YOUR YANKEE IDEALS? That's why. And those U. C. Sophs have done as a great favor by telling us the same . . . as well as making us feel like a lot of dirty deuces . . .

And yet, in that very fact lies our salvation. As long as Youth has a hunger for democracy and the courage to despise its neglect . . . as long as we have the decency to blush at that revelation and the desire to make a finer, truer record . . . DEMOCRACY WILL PERSIST. For democracy is not a matter of words or laws . . . IT IS GOD'S IMAGE IN THE FAULTY HUMAN HEART . . . AND HELL ITSELF SHALL NOT PREVAIL AGAINST IT.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Those who have talked with President Roosevelt in the past month find him looking a little tired and under greater strain than before the war crisis. His face is more serious, he seems more determined and more forceful. There is less of the airy jocularity about him these days.

One business man from the middle west talked to the president about some careful soundings he had made throughout that area, which disclosed that 90 per cent of the people were convinced that the British and French would lose in the early stages of the war, but would win in the end.

This brought from Roosevelt the comment: "It's a mistake to assume anything like that."

He went on to explain that reports from American military and naval attaches were not at all optimistic regarding the Allied position.

"We want to look around very carefully," the president continued in effect, "to see what our position will be without the British fleet. We want to examine the situation from the point of view not only of our own coasts, but those of Canada and Central America."

The president did not elaborate further. But his naval strategists long ago pointed to the certainty that in the event of a German victory, Hitler would take over the British fleet exactly as Britain took over the German fleet in 1918. With the combined German and Japanese fleets, the strategists pointed out, it would take more than the Monroe Doctrine to protect the vast undeveloped areas of Latin America.

Home Shots.

IN OFF-MOMENTS Cordell Hull sometimes sputters about "those White House boys." Apparently he doesn't like them . . . It is highly improbable that the Germans could have discovered a British plot to sink the Iroquois, even if one existed. German agents are able to pick up British radio messages and secure a certain amount of secret information, but if the British really were planning to sink the Iroquois, it would have been known only to two or three people, even in Great Britain . . . U. S. officials say privately that the Iroquois scare was merely to pave the way for Hitler's heavy attacks on the Maginot Line and on merchant shipping, once his peace offers were rejected . . . John L. Lewis' economists, who watch the business horizon as carefully as anyone in the government, say that the war is not likely to affect U. S. economy much for a long time. Chief pick-up has been in coal, which the British now cannot supply to Latin America. As a result of this, the railroads are repairing coal cars. But meanwhile food prices are advancing in various communities.

Hoover and Moley.

HERBERT HOOVER is certainly not pulling any punches about Professor Raymond Moley's articles in The Saturday Evening Post. He not only told Roosevelt he would cooperate in denouncing them publicly, but at a conference of California newspaper editors in Palo Alto, he took some further cracks at the ex-Brain Truster.

During the discussion Hoover was asked what he thought of the Moley articles, and the ex-president shot back that he considered Moley a "nit-wit."

Later he corrected this, however, saying he did not want to call Moley a nitwit, but felt that Moley had not given a true picture of the 1932 conferences between President-Elect Roosevelt and President Hoover at which Moley was present. Hoover concluded that if the professor's articles were no more thorough about other matters than they were about the conferences, then he could not consider them trustworthy.

Continuing, he added that Moley had jumped to conclusions based upon only partial information, did not have all the facts that Roosevelt had, and was putting Roosevelt in a bad light without having as good grounds to do so as he made out.

Later in the discussion Hoover remarked: "Moley is probably a dreamer and an idealist. But in this case he violated a confidential relationship similar to that of a lawyer to his client."

"To Justice."

ON THE DAY the Finnish delegation arrived in Moscow, a friend of the Finnish minister in Washington, Hjalmar Procope, went to call on him at the legation. Drinks were brought in, and as the glasses were raised, the guest proposed a toast: "Let us drink to the continued independence of Finland."

Procope's eyes lighted and the expression of his face was resolute. "To Justice!" he cried, and they drank.

The justice which Procope prays for in these days is the justice he worked for and suffered imprisonment for as a revolutionary leader in 1918. Before that time, Finland had been a grand duchy of Russia. For inciting Finns to shake off the Russian yoke, Procope was thrown into prison. But within a year he was a member of parliament in the independent republic of Finland.

Procope is not a career diplomat, but a shipping expert. It was as president of an exporting company that he first came to know the United States. "At once," he says, "I liked this country's way of living. In a deep, psychological, moral way, Finland and the United States are similarly democratic."

Procope has made a hit in Washington, though he has been here only a few months. This is partly because he is a handsome widower who looks much younger than his 50 years. But also, wherever he goes, he is greeted, "The Minister of Finland? Oh, yes . . . that's the country that pays us the war debt. Very glad to meet you, Mr. Minister!"

Procope was formerly Finland's Foreign Minister, and laid down a policy which he believes Finland will follow today, even in the shadow of the "bear that walks like a man"; a policy of neutrality based on co-operation with the other Scandinavian states but no participation in a bloc of big powers.

War Shots.

LORD LOTHIAN, Britain's astute new ambassador, is paying courtesy calls on all members of the cabinet . . . Oliver Quayle, acting treasurer of the Democratic national committee, is still sending out monetary appeals to dead men . . . The U. S. navy has its fingers crossed about the tough job of patrolling the new Pan-American parking lot in the Atlantic and Pacific to keep out submarines . . . The German pocket-battleship "Admiral Scheer," now believed loose in Latin American waters, is giving the British a lot to worry about. It is faster than any British dreadnaught, even the HMS Hood, and has longer-range guns than any British cruiser. The only thing that can defeat her is a destroyer squadron. They can steam faster, but the British can't spare a whole squadron to hunt for her.

Loneliness of a City

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AS I approached the great city my attention was distracted by numbers of lumbering trucks, fast moving automobiles and a long clattering streetcar, which I followed. Others attempted to slip past the streetcar, but for me that was too much risk. I remained behind until it turned off on another street.

Ahead I saw tall buildings and towering spires, and around a corner, beneath a great high level bridge, were large moving ships. Long latticed steel bridges stood on end to let the steamers pass. At length I came upon this great high level bridge, when, to keep pace with the traffic in the center I traveled forty miles an hour. Then I heard a roaring alongside, and a man in uniform approached on a motorcycle. "Where are you from?" he inquired gruffly.

I meekly told him. "Never heard of the place," he said and grinned. I wondered if I had exceeded the speed limit, but he waved his dark gloved hand and suggested, more kindly, that after this I keep within the traffic lane I started with. I thanked him, nervously, and went on.

I parked my car in a lot overlooking a large expanse of lake. Here I sat awhile and watched the smoke of a distant vessel coming into port. A freighter of unusual length passed slowly beyond the shadow of the lighthouse. Rows of white gulls preened and swooped and wheeled along the breakwater.

Presently I walked up the crowded street until I found a barber shop where shoes were shined. Mine needed it. The operator rolled up the trousers cuffs and some seeds fell out upon the floor. He plucked some long dark spanish needles from my socks and said with a subtle smile that he hadn't seen such burrs in many years. "The country is still full of them," said I.

When I had finished the errand I came to do, I walked in and out among the crowds until my feet were blistered from the pavements and my eyes were blinded by the artificial lights of tunnel-like arcades.

A crippled man sat flat upon the sidewalk, selling lead pencils and shoestrings. He looked up with pleading eyes to whoever passed that way. I felt a nearness to this weary looking man, and stopped close by to watch the people pass—like those on London bridge. "Strangers, every one, and I a stranger too." I longed for woods, green fields and quiet streams—and a little home where I knew a welcoming light would gleam when I returned.

Nation Joins In 4th Annual Observance Of Grocers Week

The attention of the nation is focused all week on the individual food merchants, with the opening of National Retails Grocers week. In every city, village, hamlet, and cross-road in the United States—everywhere that a grocery store may be found, customers and producers are joining with the food trade in a demonstration in honor of the neighborhood grocer.

Several hundred thousand individual retail grocers who distribute two-thirds of all foods sold in the United States will greet consumers with public receptions, bargain parades, personal greetings, contests and a general festival activity. The program scheduled is designed to recognize the broader services that individual retail grocers have rendered to humanity.

"Open house" will be observed all week by grocers from coast to coast. Everyone has been invited to visit the grocery stores in this section—to get better acquainted with the individual food merchants who contribute so much to the general welfare of the community.

"It Pays to Know Your Grocer."

This is the fourth annual National Retail Grocers week. As in the past wide publicity will be given to the slogan, "It Pays to Know Your Grocer," the implication being that closer personal relations between the "man behind the counter" and the customer will be mutually beneficial.

All week long representative grocers will be guests at various public functions to be staged in many parts of the country. Civic and public leaders are joining in the tribute.

Various contests have been sponsored by the National Association of Retail Grocers as a feature of the event. The interest of girls of high school and preparatory school age is being invited by the Ideal Pantry contest. This contest consists of presenting in competition one's idea of the make-up of an ideal pantry stock for a home. Cash prizes will be paid to the winners. Primarily, however, the contest is designed to interest girls in the household, against the time when they will be maintaining a pantry on their own account.

Boys of high school and preparatory school age are invited to submit essays on "America's Most Famous Grocery Clerks." assortment of one hundred and ten cash prizes will be awarded to the best essays submitted. Completed details on contests for both boys and girls will be be found on another page of this section.

Grocers everywhere are prepared to receive huge throngs of visitors throughout the week. Local grocery stores will take on a carnival appearance throughout the week by the use of various types of colorful advertising material.

The celebration promises to be one of the most unusual in the history of the United State. From morning until night throughout the week there will be demonstrations expressing good will and appreciation for the grocers and the job they are doing.

Charles II of England went into the grocery business in a big way. He withdrew the charter of the London grocers guild and conducted the food distribution of the city by himself. But not for long. He found he wasn't a very successful grocer and gave up.

Grocer Works To Develop Community

It is almost impossible to determine the contribution of the grocer to the business and social life of the community. In fact it seldom occurs to anyone that the average individual food merchant differs from any other type of small business man until actual comparison is made.

Because he deals with the necessities of life the grocer is in contact with the family more frequently than any other type of business or professional man. It is only natural that such daily contacts usually ripens into deep friendship, so that regardless of where one travels in America, investigation will reveal that the grocer is intimate with more people than anyone else in the community.

It is the individual grocer who is called on for advice or counsel concerning various family problems. When financial distress pinches the pocketbook he cheerfully continues the extension of credit. Countless thousands of families throughout the country can testify as to the friendship of the grocer in times of financial reverses.

However, it is in the operation of his business that the individual retail grocer excels. Being his own boss he can render the personalized service preferred by every housewife. If certain brands or varieties of products are sought by consumers it is the individual grocer who can and does go out of his way to cater to every personal whim in respect to food products.

Millions of housewives laud the time and energy saving delivery service of the individual grocer. In purchasing food supplies it isn't necessary these days for a consumer to spend two or three hours in the midst of jostling crowds.

Nor is it essential for consumers to undergo the expense of operating pleasure automobiles to haul food supplies to the home. The individual grocer relieves consumers of this expense and trouble by delivering the choicest foods to the kitchen door.

The work of the retail grocers in behalf of the farmers is a story in itself. The power and size of the non-profit Independent Food Distributors Council consisting of 153,000 grocers is almost beyond comprehension. Yet this giant marketing organization has quietly functioned for nearly three years, staging frequent nation-wide sales drives whenever surplus crops threatened the welfare of producers.

Grocers' Envoy

Ralph A. Schad, above, is merchandise manager of the Independent Grocers' Institute of Mansfield, and is actively interested in maintaining the friendly relations between retailers and consumers, and in servicing the Square Deal Food Stores group. Offices of the organization are in the Richland Trust building. Schad was formerly police chief of Mansfield.

Here's a Picture of Grocers Who Are Successful

"The successful retailer handles quality merchandise. He watches his costs, and keeps them at a minimum. He renders service to his customers. He studies the trend in eating habits, and he knows food values. He helps his customers plan their menus, and he displays a genuine interest in their selection of foods. He dispenses courtesy and consideration, he has a ready smile and he knows how to say thank you. If he promises delivery at 3 o'clock, the order is delivered at 3 o'clock, by a delivery man who is a credit to the store.

"He watches his neighborhood and solicits business of newcomers by personal calls. If an old customer stops buying from him, he calls at her home to find out why. When he waits on a customer he suggests items which increase his sales without adding to his costs. In a word—he is on his toes! Of course, he cooperates with his wholesalers and his fellow retailers. He attends conventions to learn what is going on in the grocery business. He is an active member of his state association, and the national association, and he does his bit to help them to help him. He joins with his fellow retailers in concerted efforts for the common good."

"L. W. Hitchcock,
Chicago, Vice-Pres.
"Independent Food Distributors Council."

FOOD AS AN EDUCATOR

Because of the universal interest in things to eat, the sources of foods are utilized by some schools, in teaching geography, to impress the pupil with the names and location of foreign countries, according to the National Association of Retail Grocers. Specially mounted maps with twine extensions indicate the relative position of America to the countries being studied. The experience of teachers shows that pupils remember best the countries in which their favorite foods are grown.

Groceries Date Back to Early Days

The institution which we call the grocery store today is one of the most ancient of all commercial establishments which have developed in conjunction with human civilization.

While its inception is clouded in vagueness and the records of the existence of the neighborhood grocer do not penetrate more than a few thousand years before the time of Christ, deductions point to the existence of markets of this character from the time when neighboring hunters, farmers and herdsmen began the choice of specialized callings. It is logical to believe that at first these specialists began trading with each other. But it is just as logical to believe that as each of the special vocations became habits of life, someone else assumed the task of intermediary in these transactions.

Research discloses that the Chaldeans were enthusiastic grocers and went so far as to develop weights and measures in the stabilization of their business.

Homer Makes Allusions.

Homer recorded incidents which indicated strongly the existence of what then answered for the grocery store, but refrained from going into details, possibly because the trade might not have been very respectable among the Greeks. The Spartans disdained to have any part in the food exchange and under the law the slaves were given this department of life to carry on.

The Romans, however, were right in for more and better eating and it was during this period that the grocery developed into high standing. This was the result of a fondness for the pleasures of the table and the founders of the empire began early to expand the source of supplies.

Where, it is to be believed, the past of the grocery business consisted mostly of trading corn for geese or vegetables for goat meat and milk for fruit of the neighborhood, when the Romans really got under way they started to specialize in the art of eating with discrimination. Right here the foundations of the modern grocery store were laid.

Yearn For Better Food.

In fact the yearning for something more than hunks of meat, ground or whole cereals and fruit and vegetables probably was the seed of what later became organized international trade. Spices, preserved fruits, meats, flavors and what today we know as condiments were encouraged in the preparation of elaborate meals. Much of it came from other countries, and sometimes it took a war or two to stabilize the exchange of edibles.

The grocery business skyrocketed—in volume and esteem. Bread, bacon, oil and wine were probably the fundamental grocery stocks. Bacon was developed as a table delicacy and under Valentinia III the consumption was nearly four million pounds a year at home; while other nations were educated in its use and gradually it was exported in vast amounts.

Pepper was a great grocers' special of the early Roman days and the retailer with a stock of it was fixed for life. It was very expensive because it had to be brought overland from the Malabar coast of India. Alaric's ransom of Rome was paid in the shape of 3,000 pounds of pepper.

MANY PRUNES

SAN JOSE, Cal. — (U.P.) — With California producing a prune crop that leaves a vast surplus over what the population of the United States will eat, prune growers are having the University of California experiment with prunes as a food for hogs, cattle, dairy herds and sheep.

WORD 'GROCER' DEFINED

The designation "grocer" as applied to the retail food purveyor is first found in recorded English in 1373 at London. Contemporary references also were to "grossours de vin," a wine merchant, and "groser of fysshe." The word was first applied to dealers who bought or sold "by the gross" and probably had its origin in France.

PAUL E. STURGES

Four of the oldest wholesale grocery concerns in the city are taking part in the observation of National Grocers' Week. Heading the concerns are: Avery C. Hand, president of Tracy and Avery company; Frank Bissman, president of the Bissman company, wholesale grocers; Paul E. Sturges heads the Central Fruit and Grocery company as president and treasurer; and Robert C. Remy is vice president and secretary of the A. F. Remy company.

Sound System and Rise In Building Objectives of FHA

The National Housing act undertook to accomplish two major purposes. These were:

1. The establishment for the home owners of America a mortgage system which would obviate the many defects in the old system.

2. To bring about a revival of the construction industry and thus create employment for thousands of unemployed workers in the building trades and other heavy industries.

In commenting on how the Federal Housing administration is operating to achieve these objectives, Administrator Stewart McDonald declared that "in no way does it involve the lending of government money."

"The Federal Housing administration hasn't a dollar of government money to lend," he declared. "The whole theory back of the National Housing act is to set up a mechanism that would encourage private capital to resume mortgage lending on a sound and profitable basis."

HE'D BE 'CINCH'

Says President's Re-election Sure If U. S. Stays Out of War.

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Economist Roger Babson believes President Roosevelt would be a "cinch" for re-election if he keeps the United States out of war until November, 1940.

"Both parties will use the slogan 'We kept you out of war' But after 1940 if Europe wants us we'll be at war."

AMERICAN GROCERY ORIGINATED BY PILGRIMS 300 YEARS AGO

The American grocery store, as it is known today, had its inception in the early colonial storehouses of more than 300 years ago in New England.

The development, of course, has been through the avenues of evolution, which in turn followed the twists and angles of early settlements and penetrations of the wilderness by audacious pioneers.

The forerunner of our grocery distribution system developed in the region of Massachusetts Bay very shortly after the arrival of the Pilgrims in 1620. It came into being as soon as the earliest settlers were able to organize the raising of summer crops and get orderly fishing and hunting established.

The development of marine communications with the old world and the West Indies set up what we describe as "trade," and as soon as trade was assured local markets came into being.

According to historical research by the National Association of Retail Grocers, the early market centers were not very highly organized. The markets included every sort of merchandise in "general" stores. Very gradually these trading posts divided into specialized lines. The process was retarded by existing conditions, such as the pushing out into the wilderness of trading posts to develop the native Indian patronage. These posts, obviously, were under necessity of carrying in stock all sorts of commodities.

Those engaged in trade did not get into specialization of lines until the populations along the Atlantic coast had become quite definitely settled into permanent communities and the affairs of business into well defined grooves. Thus it was probably no earlier than the latter part of the century that grocery specialists came into existence to serve the retail trade.

As the population grew in the country and the density increased on the Atlantic shores the settlements became more and more organized in business and social contacts and business began to take permanent form. One of the earlier departures was the segregation of food distribution as a separate form from that of clothing, equipment and household requirements, the arts and luxuries.

Despite its early start, however, the grocery stumbled rather blindly through three centuries of time without achieving a development that today we regard as being worthy of such an important service to all human beings.

Through the generations the grocery store was regarded with something of a joking toleration.

The relation of the grocery to public health and well-being apparently was not considered seriously.

However, with the scientific analyses of causes of disease and various forms of ill health there gradually arose a sense of the importance of care in the handling of food assembly and distribution. Since the turn of the century tremendous strides have been made in the methods of preparation, handling and distribution of foods and with those strides there has developed a demand for form in this trade which is representative of the newer conception of food values.

STORE IN WHICH LINCOLN WAS CLERK HAD 100 ITEMS IN STOCK

It is likely that the grocery store in which Abraham Lincoln worked as a clerk down in southern Illinois did not have 100 items in stock. Yet the community which was dependent on the primitive store for food supplies managed to survive. In fact it is probable that the people in that region thought they were living very well, and they were by comparison with more remote areas. But ill health was prevalent and much misery marked the days of the residents. How much of it was attributable to the food supply and thereby to diet values may not be known.

Of course the pioneers could do very little about their groceries. The food supply system was a makeshift. There was no organized service involved. Trade was an individualistic matter; the buyer was the aggressor and the seller indifferent. Profit solely was the essence of all transactions.

The turn of the century was marked by rapid strides in improvement. The considerations of health became paramount. Order and attractive appearance became factors in all merchandising. More and more was learned about food values and the care and preservation of edibles. People became more fastidious regarding their supplies. The trade realized that improvements were imperative because outsiders were coming in with new ideas.

Thus the era of specialization was turned on to the grocery trade. Engineers began improving the physical surroundings for food distribution. Medical science began cataloguing food values. Other engineers applied refrigeration and heat and moisture to preservation problems. Manufacturers began the use of sanitary packing.

Artists began tinkering with arrangement and background for eye appeal. City plan experts began developing the location idea. In a word the entire batteries of the world of science were turned on the trade and in a surprisingly short time revolutionized the whole character of the grocery business.

And the bewildering part about it is that the prices of today, including this vast scope of refinement, are lower than they were when a heap of miscellaneous provisions constituted a grocery store.

IT PAYS TO KNOW YOUR SQUARE DEAL GROCER!

The growth of modern civilization can be traced not too indirectly to the growth of the modern grocer and the ease with which men were enabled to obtain food. For no great cities were built, no great works of art were created when men were obliged to hunt down their every meal. It was not until people were furnished with convenient, satisfying sources of foodstuffs that they were able to turn their energies to other things.

At this time it is wise to stop and consider the part your grocer plays in modern life . . . the things his existence enables you to do . . . the luxuries which his service provides. During National Retail Grocers Week it is fitting that you should know that "It Pays You to Know Your Square Deal Grocer."

THE GROCERS INSTITUTE

The many Retail Grocers, Wholesalers, Provision Companies, etc., that belong to the Square Deal Independent Grocers Association, maintain a Grocers Institute. This Institute acts as a clearing house for all the many details that the grocery business entails. It supervises and places the Square Deal advertisement each week. It maintains a weekly bulletin service to each member. It guards your health, for each product that comes on the food market must have the Square Deal approval for wholesomeness. TURKISH ENVOY LEAVES RUSSIA

September 26, definitely to conclude an agreement with Russia, Turkey's old friend.

Then had come the sensational visit of Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister. Saracoglu saw the sights of Moscow and kept in touch with the British and French embassies while Ribbentrop and Molotov and Stalin concluded a treaty of friendship, issued the famous joint declaration which said implicitly to the allies: "Accept peace on our terms ——or else," and concluded an agreement to stimulate German-Russian trade relations.

Next came the Russian thrust into the Baltic, and negotiations with Esthonia, Latvia, Lithuania and, finally Finland.

The first three Baltic countries had conceded Russian demands for naval and airplane bases and special railroad and port facilities on their territory.

Word came from Istanbul and Ankara, Turkey, that Turkey's pact of mutual assistance with Great Britain had been concluded and would be signed as soon as Saracoglu returned home.

Then Finland's special envoy, J. K. Paasikivi, had arrived and returned home without accepting any Russian demands.

The news from Helsingfors was that he would not return here until Friday at the earliest—after the conference of the Finnish president and the kings of Sweden, Norway and Denmark at Stockholm starting tomorrow. This meeting was expected to result in a united Nordic neutrality bloc.

AIDS SOUTHPAWS

BOSTON—(U.P.)—Boston University made provision for its southpaws in furnishing the new Charles Hayden Memorial, home of the College of Business Administration. Dean Everett W. Lord said that a survey showed that 6 per cent of the university's students were left-handed, so in each classroom three chairs in every 50 were provided with writing arms on the left side.

ELECTRIC COOKERY HAS BEEN "ECONOMY PROVED" IN MANSFIELD HOMES

Like This of Mrs. H. A. Bracey, 35 Altamont Ave.

Yes, in hundreds of homes right here in Mansfield Electric Cooking has been proven ECONOMICAL. By actual comparison of Light Bills before and after Electric Ranges have been installed we can PROVE that it costs just a few cents a day to cook electrically.

In the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bracey, 35 Altamont Ave., the average light bill for 1 year previous to the time a Westinghouse Electric Range was installed was $3.27 Monthly. After the installation the monthly bill for 1 year year was only $5.46 monthly. PROVING that Mrs. Bracey has been able to do all her baking, roasting and cooking for only $2.19 monthly average. In addition states Mrs. Bracey, "I think the food tastes better and I like the way the vegetables retain their flavor and color."

Think of It! Mrs. Bracey Cooks Electrically For Only $2.19 Monthly*

LEGACY OF LOVE + + + + + +

By KATHRN BEMIS

(Copyright, 1939)

CHAPTER I

UNDER the red-tiled roof of the Merriam Frosts' palatial white stucco house in Pasadena, the merrymaking of the highly sophisticated younger set was in full swing. Guests included masked men elegant in rich brocades, silks, satins and laces; plain debutantes of previous seasons now beautifully disguised as elusive masked ladies of the court queens, gypsy dancers and notorious hoydens of historical renown; this year's crop of lovely masked young debs, also beautifully costumed, but their eyes more eager, their frilly flounces and ruffles over hoopskirts and pantalettes swishing gayer challenge to conquest.

Rita Rhodes was one of the crowd but totally unlike any one else in it. To be sure, she had come out two years ago, but she was now, and looked as if she always would be, the loveliest woman of twenty-two in any sort of group. Tonight in her Barbara Frietchie costume of crisp pink-glowered muslin, a little pink tulle cap confining her corn-gold curls, she was nearly irresistible. Even Preston Meeker, leading her along the palm-shaded garden walk this cool August evening, was finding it difficult to say what he must say to her.

With one bare arm linked in his Mid-Victorian gentleman's coatsleeve, she suddenly began dancing a few light steps to his measured tread. She swayed to the lively rhythm coming from a famous orchestra back in the ballroom.

Rita finally made her frivolous feet behave, fell into step with Preston again. She sang out, "Don't you love masquerades? The pretending? It's exciting to be someone you aren't—just for a few hours! Let's give a masquerade on our first anniversary—invite everyone!"

His strange silence filled her with a twinge of fear, reminded her too poignantly of two other men who had gone out of her life. She tried to read his face by the dim light of lanterns strung overhead but could make out nothing reassuring.

"Preston—what is it? Am I being very silly?"

She shivered, withdrew her arm from his.

"No," he returned shortly. He pulled her down to a bench and sat beside her.

She snatched the mask from her eyes, glanced up at the yellow oranges hanging from branches overhead, inhaled the sweet spicy fragrance of orange blossoms.

"Is anything—wrong, Preston?"

"Perhaps. I've been mulling things over lately. I'm—worried. Just how much do you love me, Rita?"

"Must we go over that again? I still can't say. I suppose as much as I'll ever love any man. You said it didn't matter. . . ."

"Yes, I know. I thought I'd make you care—a great deal—after we were married. But now—I'm not so sure. It's—it's taking a big chance, isn't it? If I failed . . ."

Rita tightly clutched her hands in her lap. "You mean—mean you'd like to break our engagement?"

She could see the gray of his hair beneath his mask at the temples. Why didn't a man of thirty-five know his own mind? She pushed back her little tulle cap as if its wisp of weight were too great a load. She shut her eyes briefly, thought, "What in the world makes him act like this? What fool thing have I done now?"

"The breaking of an engagement should be up to—the lady."

This, after he had begged and begged her to marry him!

"Very well, Preston—consider our engagement broken." Her voice was scarcely more than a whisper.

"If people are curious, tell them you luckily discovered you didn't care for me. My shoulders are broad. I'll be a regular Mid-Victorian gentleman."

He tried a laugh that stuck in his throat. She was so very pretty, desirable really. It was a wrench to give her up, but business was business. With the unexpected windfall that had come to him this morning, he was now free to roam the world, live like a king and, for a time at least, he would not have to answer to any one woman.

"On the other hand, we might might make a go of it," he said, trying to sound reluctant. "We could experiment — there's always the divorce mill."

"No—emphatically no! We'd be miserable." She would always despise him after this. She wondered why she had been so blind to his insincerity during the two months they had been engaged.

* * *

He got to his feet with a sigh of relief.

"I'm glad you agree with me, Rita. If you'd cared—it would have been different."

He turned on his heel and was soon lost in the shadows of the old palms on his way back to the house.

Rita buried her burning face in her hands. Her sobs were not for the loss of Preston but rather a salve for her badly wounded pride. He was the third man within the last two years who had given her this identical treatment. First it had been Rhodes Smith, then Jimmy Blocking—and she had rather liked Jimmy—and now, Preston. She couldn't understand it. Especially when all three men had little or no financial background. Before her 20th birthday, she had refused to marry nearly every eligible young man in her crowd—and now, the older, less eligible ones dared to treat her like this!

Had she acquired some trait, some fault, some — something about which her best friends wouldn't tell her? For the hundredth time, she checked on this, but located nothing. She was to have the millions left by her father when she became twenty-five; and an heiress who has good looks—people and mirrors had assured her of this—must have a serious flaw in her character, her personality, that made men behave so heartlessly. Worse yet, she had lately been accused by newspaper columnists and tabloid writers of being an incorrigible flirt, which was cruelly unjust. They called her the "feverishly restless, much-engaged glamour girl," making her furious.

It was true she hadn't loved any of her fiances, but she blamed this on some flaw in her emotional make-up. Thinking herself incapable of loving any man, she had decided to marry one whom she could at least admire and respect. Surely she who had met men by the score would have fallen in love by this time if it were possible.

Rita, jumped to her feet with a litle cry. Sanding before her was a tall clown wearing a grotesquely funny mask.

"Why, you—you've been hiding in there—listening! How—how dare you? Who are you?"

He laughed shortly in a melodious baritone.

"Frankly, just a gate-crasher," he said. "It's a good way to find out things. Already, I'm wised up considerably. All that's printed about you isn't true — and that's a relief. Poor little rich girl! It's a darn shame. It's a matter that needs looking into, I'll say! When a low-down fortune hunter like Meeker hotfoots it away from a girl of your type, it's a rank outrage."

"Is that so? Your sympathy overwhelms me! Now that you know so much about my case, what do you advise?" she clipped out scornfully.

"That you take up with a better man. I'm at your service, Miss Rhodes."

In vain she tried to control the exciting warmth that raced through her at this bold invitation.

"You're nothing but a voice. Even at a masquerade, it's nice to know—at least surmise who people are. And I haven't the remotest idea of your identity."

His hands went quickly to his mask, as if he feared she would snatch it off his face.

Her provoking laugh rang out.

Evidently you don't intend to expose yourself Are you planning to make off with the Frost silver? They've some stunning pieces. Or do you prefer jewels?"

* * *

"I might take up most any line of work if I'm goaded too far. But first let me apologize—tell you how I abhor snooping behind bushes. I wouldn't have come out—frightened you—but I was getting a cramp—in danger of being paralyzed for life."

She laughed again in spite of herself, then severely drew up her slim little body.

"It serves you right. But what possessed you? Clowns do have a sense of honor, I suppose."

"Oh definitely. Substantially, so have I——you'll find out. But we'll discuss that later."

"Later?"

"Yes. You're going to see a lot of me—and like it."

Rita glanced over her shoulder. A noisy group was coming across the terrace toward the garden.

The clown said quickly, "Crowds make me nervous—I prefer being alone with you. So long—and happy landing!" He wheeled sharply and sprinted away in the direction of the swimming pool.

Rita was presently surrounded by Julius Caesar, John Alden and Priscilla, Madame Du Barry and Louis XV, all masked. But it took no imagination to single out their true identities. Laughter and speech gave away most of them.

"What a darling Barbara Frietchie you make, Rita!" came effervescently from Jilly Stern, shaking out her billowing Du Barry skirts.

"Glad you like it," said Rita, hastily gathering her forces. "I'm freezing out here—was just going inside to warm my toes."

Bob Dilling laid the heavy arm of Mephistopheles around her shoulders and drew her away. "The devil knows the hot spots, Barb— come along. Live coals are my business."

* * *

She managed a giggle and hastened with him along the narrow gravel path. Bob was a conceited Harvard freshman and she usually avoided him, but now he was as welcome as light in a fog.

She made him wait while she went to the dressing-room to conceal with powder the last vestige of her tears. To avoid gossip, she would have to stick out here the remainder of the evening. She smoothed her thin dark brows with a trembling forefinger, gazed at her reflection in a mirror. Her dark blue eyes were dark with misery. It made her feel reckless.

When the news of her latest broken engagement came out, what a lot of talk there would be! Rita Rhodes, the flirt, the shallow, never-satisfied girl with too much money! Well, it was too bad she couldn't have the game as well as the name. People would say she was exactly like her mother Delores, who was now in Europe making her customary gay rounds of the fashionable spots.

Rita shrugged. Thank goodness, she was the child of Delores' first and only love alliance! Delores had really loved John Rhodes, the young millionaire, when she married him; but he had died when Rita was only two. Delores' social ambition since then had carried her into marriage and divorce with two other rich men in succession. Four years ago, being well able to do as she pleased, it had been her whim to make handsome Wilmot Green her fourth husband. He was 15 years her junior, and penniless, but suavely clever. Delores said it was a relief to let such a keen-minded man take financial responsibility off her shoulders. Delores was smart enough, however, to keep tight rein on her own fortune, but she let him have complete control of Rita's inheritance, much to Rita's annoyance.

NAZIS ATTACK, DRIVE ACROSS FRENCH BORDER

Paris Claims Drive Halted With Heavy Losses; Germans Reach French Village.

the wake of an artillery barrage without the protection of tanks.

French artillery fire shattered the German drive, causing heavy losses, dispatches said.

With their first line of observation gone, however, the French command kept forces alert along the main line watching for a new assault.

This morning French military dispatches stated the Germans had failed at least for the moment to pursue their attacks

French confidence that the situation was well in hand was reflected in a war ministry announcement that soldiers in the class of 1909 would be released from the army starting Friday and the class of 1910 would be released immediately afterward.

Dispatches also stated some of the older officers in the army would be released

In anticipation of the German thrusts, the communique added, the French command had decided more than 15 days ago to order back to new positions divisions which earlier had advanced into German territory.

This movement, it was said, terminated Oct. 3

"Since then," the communique said, "we have left in contact only light elements of observation and some fractions of support."

Near the Luxembourg border, after penetrating to the French village of Apach yesterday, Nazi infantry and tanks were reported clinging to hard won positions on the heights of Schneeburg

While military activity on the front increased in intensity, Premier Daladier summoned his cabinet to meet Thursday with President Lebrun for a review of the war

French sources said the German thrust at Apach yesterday apparently was aimed to carry past the village and turn west toward the Moselle river below Luxembourg in an attempt to strike at the weakest part of the Maginot line.

The French did not mention their casualties in the suddenly unrolling battle, which forced their lines back from a mile to a mile and one-half in the pocket formed by the junction of the German, French and Luxembourg borders

The Germans employed heavy tanks and airplanes in large number as well as infantry, it was reported, in sweeping past the French outposts along the Moselle and driving up that valley in the direction of Sierck.

The outer fortifications of the Maginot line are some six or seven miles south of Sierck in the vicinity of Thionville.

French advices indicated that Apach is considered a vital point, situated as it is on their flank.

There were indications that French strategy was based on the hope the Germans might be enticed into an assault on the Maginot line. Semi-official statements admitted that it would be a "waiting war" on the part of French and British troops.

The allies, these sources said, would attempt to cause the Germans to leave their own Siegfried line in the hope of gaining an immediate victory before the pinch of the British blockade is felt at home.

Western Losses Regained, Nazis Say.

BERLIN —(AP)— The German supreme command announced today that French troops had retired from the main part of the German territory they have been occupying outside the Siegfried line since the first weeks of the war.

"In the course of the day yesterday," a communique said, "French troops exacuated the greatest part of German territory they hitherto had occupied in front of our fortifications and retreated to and across the border."

Commenting upon the German air raid on the British naval base in the Firth of Forth yesterday, the communique added that "English naval forces were successfully attacked again" and that two warships had "sustained bomb hits of the heaviest caliber."

"This success was obtained despite the heaviest defense of the enemy by anti-aircraft fire and pursuit planes," the communique declared.

At the same time the supreme command said a German submarine commander had disclosed that the sinking of the British battleship Royal Oak and the reported torpedoing of the battle cruiser Repulse occurred in Scapa Flow Bay, off the north coast of Scotland (It was there that the crews of German warships scuttled their vessels during the World war after their surrender to the British fleet—opening the sea cocks while under the guard of British men of war. (The British admiralty has acknowledged the sinking of the Royal Oak, but has denied any damage to the Repulse.)

HELD IN THEFT

2 Boys Charged With Stealing 200 Pounds of Scrap Brass.

Two youths, one 16 years old and the other 17, were held in jail today in the theft of 200 pounds of scrap brass from the Malo brothers junk yard on Bowman street.

Police took them into custody yesterday after employes caught them hauling away the scrap from the rear of the building

Roy Hickman, 170 Coul street, told officers the brass had been stolen from the establishment Monday night and that he discovered the material hidden in the weeds at the rear of the building.

He said employes lay in wait for the alleged thieves and caught the two youths when they began removing the material.

Police said it was the second time in the past two weeks that the establishment had been burglarized. On Oct. 1, thieves entered the building and hauled away several hundred pounds of lead.

considered a remarkable exploit of professional skill and daring.

"It appears that the U-boat fired two starboard torpedoes at the Royal Oak, of which one hit the bow.

"A muffled explosion was attributed to internal causes and the ship's store of inflammables was flooded

"Twenty minutes later the U-boat fired three or four torpedoes and these, striking in quick succession, caused the ship to capsize and sink.

"The Royal Oak was lying at the extreme end of the harbor, therefore many officers and men were drowned before rescue could be organized"

HE PLAYS SAFE

Ohio Pen Warden Fears Garden As 'Hiding Place.'

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Remember that old rustic, dirty-grey rock garden and fish pond that's stood in front of Ohio penitentiary all these years?

Well, it's on its way out—because it might provide a hiding place for someone with "ulterior motives."

Warden Frank D Henderson said so

Why Let Yourself Get Constipated?

Why endure those dull headachy days due to constipation, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble?

If your constipation, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran.

This crunchy toasted breakfast cereal is the ounce of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. It helps you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day and month after month, by the pleasantest means you ever knew.

Eat Kellogg's All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

SWINDLERS GET PAIR'S SAVINGS

Two Sisters Lose $2,030, Jewel to Women 'Divine Helpers.

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—Two elderly sisters reported to police today they had been swindled out of $2,030 and a $75 diamond pin by two young women who posed as spiritualists and "divine helpers."

The money was the entire savings of Miss Anne E. Davis, 72, and her sister, Mrs. Kate Herancourt, 78. The two sisters were accosted by the younger pair who said they wanted to talk to them.

The young women suggested the sisters withdraw their money and jewelry "so that we can transfer the blessings of the spirits to it, and your bad luck will be ended."

The money and pin were supposed to have been placed in a stocking tied to Miss Davis' waist, which "should not be untied until an hour" after they left.

STILL SMILING

Farm Boy, Hopeful That His Leg Won't Be Amputated.

Alfred Leon, 7, was injured by a feed grinder on his father's farm Saturday. Doctors, wheeling him to the operating room, was so taken by his grit they decided to try to save his leg. They postponed operating again today.
